SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 26.—
Justice Parker of the New Jersey Supreme Court today refused to admit to bail Henry de la Bruyere Carpenter and Willie Stevens held as accomplices in the murder of the Rev. Edward W.
Hall and his choir singer, Mrs.
Eleanor Mills.A card which was on the body of the Rev. Dr. Hall when it was found with that of his choir singer, Sept. 16, 1922, is in the possession of the State and fingerprints
on it correspond to those of one of the three persons held for the murder, according to State Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor at the hearing today.Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, the slain rector's widow, is at liberty on $15,000 bond, charged with the murders. Stevens, her eccentric brother, and Carpenter, a cousin,
are held in jail as her accomplices.At a preliminary hearing last week, County Judge Clarke ruled that a prima facie case had been made out against Carpenter and Stevens and held them without bail.Plea Referred to Parker.
Defense counsel appeared before
Chief Justice Gummere at Newark
on Monday to apply for bail, but he declined to have the application on the ground that it should be made to Justice Parker.Justice Parker came here from Northeast Harbor, Me., to hear the plea.Justice Parker ruled that no further evidence could be submitted either by the prosecution or the defense. He said the evidence already in his possession was quite sufficient.Robert H. McCarter of defense counsel, in his opening statement,
declared that he intended to show
that "proofs in this case are so flimsy and absurd that in our judgment it will not stand the test of the law."McCarter reviewed the history of the case and dwelt on the part the press played in the original investigation four years ago. "Four years ago," he declared, "the several weeks of investigation by the press and authorities, the grand jury turned the case down.
The State might have presented its new evidence to the grand jury,
but it did not. It was the grand jury that took Mrs. Hall from her bed and picked up the two men later, but that would not have been sensational enough."Offers Alibi Affidavit.
An affidavit of J. Carter Rice of Highland Park, New Brunswick, which stated that Carpenter and Stevens were at his home from 7 to 10:30 o'clock the night the murders were committed was introduced. The rector and the choir singer were slain between 9 and 10 o'clock the night of Sept. 4,
1922.Carpenter and Stevens were escorted into court under guard soon
after McCarter began his argument. They appeared at case.Simpson stated that he would require only half an hour for his argument. Facing Carpenter, who appeared very uncomprehending, Simpson shouted:"Dr. Hall was killed trying to save a woman. I can demonstrate that Stevens was at the scene of the murders, that he was near the body and that he placed the card on Dr. Hall's foot."

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Capt. George Pelletier Dolsy, French aviator of Paris-Tokio fame, completed a remarkable flight when he landed at Le Bourget at 11:15 o'clock last night, after covering 2750 miles, including five landings to refuel, in 38 3-4 hours' actual flying time.Capt. Pelletier took off from Villa Coubly at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. He landed at Rome, Italy, shortly after noon, then went on to Tunis, French North Africa, arriving there at 7:30 p. m. He then started on a night flight
across half of the African continent to Casa Blanca, Morocco,
where he arrived at 8:30 a. m. yesterday. He arrived in Madrid, Spain, at 2 o'clock the same afternoon; Bordeaux, France, soon after 7 p. m., and proceeded at once to Le Bourget, the airport of Paris.Capt. Pelletier Dolsy was accompanied by one mechanic and piloted
the airplane himself during the entire journey.

York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A tiny manuscript book, one of 3000
brought by Dr. Otto F. H. Vollbehr from Germany, which had been on exhibition since Tuesday at the National Arts Club, was stolen yesterday afternoon from its pad-locked glass case while Dr. Vollbehr showed guests at the club his collection of old books and manuscripts, which has been valued at $25,000,000 and while two attendants
watched over the treasures.The manuscript, for which Dr.
Vollbehr paid 40,000 gold francs ($4000) several years ago, and which has a value today of $20,- 000, was seen in its case at 2 p. m.
A few minutes later Mrs. Ilarola Tilley, a friend of Dr. Vollbehr, looked down at the case and saw that the book was gone.Miss Ruth Raymond, an attendant, told of observing a suspicious-looking young man who seemed to take an unusual interest in the case when Dr. Vollbehr was showing his guests the three of four books within.No Copy of Book.
But only the "Officium Mortuum," the manuscript book, with four illustrations by Atavanti Degli Atavanti, was gone. The book was written by a monk in the fifteenth century, and was one of the smallest and one of the most beautiful in the collection. Dr. Vollbehr, who came to America to attend
the Eucharistic Congress, said
there was no copy of the work.While there were only two keys to the padlocked case, both apparently were accounted for. "One key, which the thief believed to have used, lay on a desk a few feet from the case when the theft was discovered. The other key was in the pocket of Dr. Vollbehr's friend, Edwin Emerson, the club member who was responsible for the loan of the collection to the club. Dr. Vollbehr, Emerson, who was not in the building at the time, notified the police and acquainted newspapers of his friend's loss.Offers Reward for Book.
Dr. Vollbehr, one of the most noted bibliophiles in Europe, has offered a reward of $100 for the return of the book which he said had been painted at the behest of one of the Medici for King Mathias Corvinus of Hungary. He bought it at an auction in Italy.My only hope is that the theft was the work of an ordinary crook," Dr. Vollbehr said. "If the book was stolen by some crank, I feel pessimistic over its return."Miss Raymond, describing the suspected person, said she first thought he was trying to flirt with her as he passed about the room.
So she turned her back on him and went to the far end of the room.She said he was tall, with black hair, and blue eyes. She remembered he wore a double-breasted suit and had on "purplish" blue socks with white stripes. He was well dressed, and might have been any one of the members of various art clubs to which invitations to the exhibit were sent.That was late in the spring. No

the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Emanuel Silberstein, a restless youth of 19, hitherto regarded as something of a mental marvel, was in the King's County Hospital observation ward last night, still unable to explain to a stupid world the elaborate reason why he had killed an elderly man with a hammer, but smilingly content because he had done "a good job,"
as he put it."To tell you the truth I've lost
the mental capacity to explain,"
he told Magistrate McCloskey earlier in the day, and to that he stuck with the added assertion:
"I can't do myself justice in explaining to you at this time."The blame for the mental condition which led him to the murder,
he laid wholly upon the man he murdered, James H. Calisch, 63-year-old Dutchman, who for years had been an accountant by day and a scholar by night.Silberstein's mother, bewildered
by the swiftness of the events of the 24 hours, likewise gave it as her belief her son had been led to the crime by the philosophical teachings of the older man.Her son, she told both the court and the police, had been a boy of unusual brilliance of mind. He made Liberty loan speeches at 16 years of age, had graduated from
a commercial high school at 16,
and had been for the last three years a fascinated follower of Calisch.Fell Out Over Freud.
In the deep chambers of Calisch's study at 301 Putnam avenue, far across Brooklyn from the Silberstein apartment at 1353 Fifty-sevent street, the elderly man and his youthful satellite used to sit until daylight following strange mental paths. Until the day the new book,
"Sigmund Freud, his personality,
his teaching, his school," arrived
his discussions had been amiable enough although always heated.But that night the argument became bitter. Calisch hated Freud's doctrine, called it "the new book," defended it warmly and at the end of the night of argument Calisch,
a white-haired, precise little man,
showed young Silberstein the door.
"He's a nut," said Calisch to his landlady, Mrs. Robert Gretsch.
"Don't talk him in again."Two days later Silberstein was back to resume the argument.
Calisch showed him from his study."You're a nut," he shouted.
"What reasons have you for making such a statement?" asked young Silberstein. "On what hypothesis? Prove it!""Well," began Calisch, falling back into his tone of reasoned assertion. "In the first place—"Mrs. Gretsch, listening, could not

HEAD CITY NURSE OUT,
"TOO MUCH POLITICS"Miss Goldsmith Says Even Admissions to Koch Hospital
Are Meddled With.In announcing her resignation of Superintendent of Municipal Nurses today, Miss Josephine F.
Goldsmith declared her retirement
had been hastened by the intrusion of politics among the 44
nurses under her direction and the insistence of Aldermen and ward committeemen that the order of entrance of tubercular patients to Koch Hospital follow their recommendations rather than those of Miss Goldsmith and her staff.The present city administration,
she charges, has changed the
"hands off" policy which characterized the official attitude when she started work with the nurses
in 1920.During the last primary cap-aign, Miss Goldsmith said, she received a card signed by Mrs.

woman of the Twenty-fifth Ward, requesting her to report to her on the nursing situation. On another

SAYS A NEW OLIVE PLAN WOULD HOLD UP PAVING A YEAR

Director of Streets Brooks Supports Neutral Strip Proposal Before Real Estate Exchange.

PROTECTION FOR OWNERS ASSURED Cites Railways' Agreement to Abandon Experiment in Year if It Hurts Business Interests.

If Aldermen should reject the Board of Public Service plan for paving Olive street into an east-bound and west-bound artery, directed by a neutral strip for street cars in the center of the street, the paving of the widened thoroughfare cannot be begun for at least 11 months, according to the fact that the Board of Streets and Sewers, Brooks told the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange in an address today.

The legal steps required to re-establish a paving district for unbroken paving between the curb, he said, would consume at least 11 months, adding that the Olive street project hence would be in chaos for that time.

Brooks supports plan. Director Brooks supported the neutral strip plan as producing the greatest good for the greatest number, and said that opposition was confined largely to 16 owners of property abutting the street.

"Automobile and street car traffic are like oil and water," Director Brooks said. "They do not mix. This is evident by the fact that Chestnut street, without car tracks, carries as much vehicular traffic as the total carried by Market, Pine and Olive streets—the latter three having car tracks."

A greater number of vehicles will pass through Olive street from 15 to 18 miles more than at any lesser or greater speed. With the use of co-ordinated traffic signals and with street car and automobile traffic separated this economic speed can be maintained for both street cars and automobiles.

Most of Traffic on Street Cars. Director Brooks pointed out that the two vehicular roadways would take up 52 per cent of the 100-foot street and the 23-foot neutral strip only 23 per cent. "Yet," he added, "only approximately 25 per cent of the public, chiefly private automobile owners, will use the roadways, while 75 per cent will use the neutral strip in street cars."

The railway company has asserted that at least five minutes can be cut from running time to downtown points by use of a neutral strip.

A further advantage cited by Director Brooks is safety for pedestrians, the neutral strip and its loading platforms serving as a safety zone. He quoted the Safety Council as being in favor of the neutral strip.

The complaint of property owners that they have been forced to sacrifice 40 feet of their property, which will be less valuable under the neutral strip than the full width paving plan, was answered by Brooks with the statement that property owners will pay only 42.8 per cent of the cost of the improvement, while their property values will be doubled or trebled within 10 years.

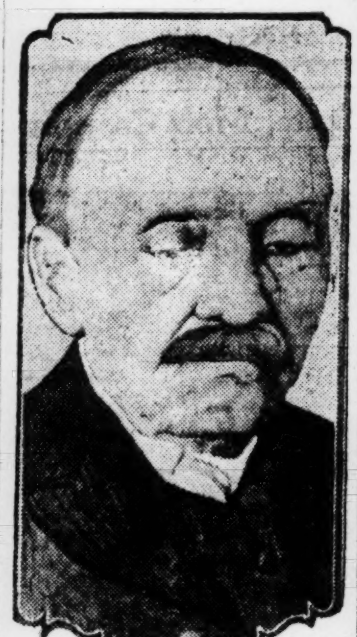

Agreement Protects Owners. In any event, Director Brooks declared, the property owner would be protected by the street railways' agreement that the neutral strip be regarded as an experiment for one year. If it should develop that business along Olive street has been hurt or any other serious disadvantage incurred, the railways would abolish the strip. Authority from the Federal Court for this arrangement was obtained yesterday.

On the other hand, if the neutral strip produces the advantages asserted for it, Director Brooks said, it likely would be embodied in the South Twelfth boulevard grade cutoff plan, which is expected to come from the hands of the commissions within 18 months.

The total cost of the Olive widening and paving was placed by Brooks at $2,783,507. Abutting property owners will pay $1,183,421. Of the remainder, the property owners will pay $906,386, and $688,200 will come from a city bond issue.

General Dead in Alton Hero of Fever Epidemic

A. C. Markley, Retired, Volunteered With Regiment and Fought Yellow Scourge in Cuba—In Army 46 Years.

BRIG.-GEN. A. C. MARKLEY.

Brigadier-General Alfred Collins Markley, retired, who died Tuesday at Alton, at the age of 83 years, was one of the heroes of the yellow fever epidemic which ravaged the American camps in Cuba during the Spanish War.

He commanded the Twenty-fourth Infantry, which, worn out and depressed by days of heavy fighting at San Juan Hill and Santiago, volunteered for garrison duty at the base, Siboney, where the deadly fever had broken out.

During 40 days at Siboney the regiment lost 100 men, a great loss, it is said, than was sustained by any regiment in battle during the Cuban campaign. Gen. Markley, then a Major, was promoted and offered a transfer but chose to remain in the "pest camp" until his men were sent back to the States. Later he was stricken with the fever, and his only son, Capt. Edward Markley, died of it in the Santiago hospital.

46 Years of Military Service. The experience in Cuba was but an episode in the long and varied life of a man who gave 46 years to a military career. Born in Doylestown, Pa., April 18, 1843, he joined the Twenty-fifth Pennsylvania volunteers in 1862, when he was 21. As a private he participated in the Antietam campaign, as a corporal he was in the field near Gettysburg, as a Sergeant he campaigned in Maryland, as a Second Lieutenant he saw service before Richmond, and as a First Lieutenant he fought the battle of Appomattox.

The close of the Civil War found him a First Lieutenant in the 127th Infantry. Under General Sheridan he went with the Chestnut street, without car tracks, carries as much vehicular traffic as the total carried by Market, Pine and Olive streets—the latter three having car tracks.

A greater number of vehicles will pass through Olive street from 15 to 18 miles more than at any lesser or greater speed. With the use of co-ordinated traffic signals and with street car and automobile traffic separated this economic speed can be maintained for both street cars and automobiles.

BOY, 14, DROWNS UNNOTICED IN MARQUETTE POOL

Joseph Lechner Jr. Not Missed by Sister and Cousin Who Were Bathing With Him.

Joseph Lechner Jr., 14 years old, of 4621 McPherson avenue, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the Marquette public municipal swimming pool at Minnesota avenue and Osage street.

With his sister, Betty Jane, 6, and a cousin, Dorothy Neville, 10, of Washington, D. C., and the mothers of both, Joseph had been visiting in the 3600 block of Montana avenue. He suggested a swimming party and he and the two girls walked to the pool, entering the water at 4:45 o'clock.

Joseph and Dorothy could swim and they went into deep water, playing around a rope, while Betty, who could not swim, remained in shallow water. Then Dorothy left Joseph to join Betty. A minute later the bell rang for everyone to leave the pool. The girls went to their lockers without seeing Joseph, but thinking he had gone to his locker.

Relative Misses Him. After dressing, the girls waited outside the locker building for Joseph, but he failed to appear. They then entered the boys' locker room and told an attendant of Joseph's absence. The attendant searched the boys' locker and found his clothes still there.

Life guards, who had gone home for dinner before beginning their evening duty, were called back and with volunteer helpers searched the pool. The body was found at 5:45 by Robert Risch, 15 years old, of 3442 Montana avenue, in eight feet of water near the diving tower, not far from where Joseph was last seen.

Artificial respiration methods and a pulmotor were used at the pool and at city hospital until 7 o'clock, but the boy failed to respond. The cause of death was given as drowning.

No Pulmotor at Pool. Mrs. Joseph Lechner, mother of the boy, criticized the pool management for not having a pulmotor on hand and for not keeping guards there until all bathers had taken their clothing from the lockers.

Life guards, who had gone home for dinner before beginning their evening duty, were called back and with volunteer helpers searched the pool. WAR VETERAN KILLS HIMSELF UNDER STREET CAR

Unable to Hold Job Because of Nervousness Resulting From Wounds, Herman Dubin Ends Life.

Despondent over his inability to hold a job because of nervousness resulting from war wounds, Herman Dubin, 24-year-old veteran of the A. E. F., threw himself beneath the wheels of a street car last night, and died of his injuries two hours later.

Dubin left his home at 3627 Evans avenue at 10 o'clock. Ten minutes later, Harry Niehaus, of 2131 Edmond avenue, motorman of a northbound Vandeventer car, observed him standing on the curb near Park boulevard.

As Niehaus approached, Dubin walked into the street and, without a warning gesture, cast himself on the tracks before the car. Niehaus stopped within a short distance, but Dubin had been caught between the wheels of the front truck.

Dies in Operating Room. A working crew had to be called to jack up the car before he could be removed. He died shortly after midnight while physicians were amputating his legs in the city hospital operating room. Just before he died, he told a policeman he was despondent because he could not keep employment.

His widow, Mrs. Theresa Dubin, to whom he was married last March, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that her husband was highly nervous as a result of war injuries and could not keep a position because he was unable to concentrate on his tasks.

He enlisted in the Third Division, a regular army outfit, when he was 15, she said, was overseas for 18 months, and was gassed once and wounded twice. After the war, he spent many months in Government hospital for rehabilitation.

Could Not Concentrate on Work. "He tried every kind of a job and was always willing to take any work," Mrs. Dubin declared. "But with each it was the same experience. He simply could not keep his mind on his work for any length of time because of his nervousness. He even tried a vocational training course at St. Louis University, but he could not study and he had to quit."

"Last night he seemed unusually nervous, and after walking about in the house finally announced he was going out to take the air for a little while. Ten minutes later two policemen came to tell me he had been run over."

rounds, fainted each time at the bier, and was finally ordered by police not to return again.

Ex-Wife Photographed at Bier. Jean Ackers, vaudeville actress, first wife of Valentino, arrived about 2:30 o'clock with her mother and a sister. She carefully removed her tortoise shell glasses and leaned close to the glass which covered the features of her former husband. She wept, very quietly, wiping her eyes with a tiny lace handkerchief. A flashlight puffed from a corner of the room. Half an hour later the photographer was distributing prints of the picture among the crowd.

Among those who viewed the body last night were Mr. and Mrs. James J. Corbett. The crowd was fairly packed in the hallways of the bier. Another was Mrs. Richard Reese Whitmore, widow of the robber hanged recently for murder in Baltimore.

At 8 o'clock five members of the Anti-Fascist Alliance of North America arrived and immediately entered into a violent altercation with the Fascist honor guard and with Guido Valenti and Dr. Leandro Tomarkin, officers of the local Fascist society. Frank Campbell, the funeral director, invited both sides into his private office whence came the sound of many voices talking all at once. Valenti said he was going to take the place of Valenti on the screen. The Anti-Fascists finally departed, declaring they would take steps to replace the Fascist guard with anti-Fascists.

The Fascist guard was removed after a brief struggle.

Actress Friend of Valentino Found Dead in London. By the Associated Press. LONDON, Aug. 26.—The Daily Mirror says Peggy Scott, an actress, 27 years old, who was a friend of Rudolph Valentino, was found dead in her flat in London yesterday. She had been intensely affected by his death. Many autographed photographs of Valentino were found in the woman's flat.

Pola Negri Leaves Los Angeles for Funeral in New York. By the Associated Press. She was accompanied by her secretary, Katherine Heinman, and a trained nurse.

Secret of Valentino's Attraction for Women

Rosa Rosanova, His Stage "Mother" and Friend, Says He Was Heartbroken, and Others of Her Sex Knew It, Intuitively.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A word picture of Rudolph Valentino as a boy who displayed real emotion over his misfortunes in love at the moment his artistic career reached its apex is sketched by Rosa Rosanova, known as "Rudy's Screen Mother" and called "Madre Mia" by him off stage.

Mme. Rosanova, a grandmother at 45, told how Valentino came to her for "heart to heart" talks and confessed that life had cheated him of the thing he craved even more than an artistic success.

"He wanted someone to make him a home of the quiet, simple sort," she said. "I asked him shortly before his last divorce if he was happy."

"Mother," he replied, "how shall I answer you? I am happy, but my heart is heavy with regret. I am a success, but beyond there is something that I dare not speak of."

His First Meeting. Mme. Rosanova met Valentino several years ago when he began rehearsing with him her role as his mother in "Blood and Sand."

"He was just a boy. He had many enemies. They used to speak of him as 'that dishwasher,' but that was simply jealousy. They envied him his noble heart. Now they say that he has not left much money. Well, he gave all his money to friends who were in need. It was generosity and not reckless spending that caused his money to disappear. There are thousands of players in this country today who owe him debts of gratitude. He gave money to all who came to him in need and he never even jotted down their names."

"He was as passionate a soul as his pictures revealed him. But he was honest and sincere and there was no treachery in his love. As a boy he was petted by his parents and he grew up what is called a 'spoiled child' but he was not vain-glorious and not 'upstage.' He was a nervous man. He even tried a vocational training course at St. Louis University, but he could not study and he had to quit."

"Last night he seemed unusually nervous, and after walking about in the house finally announced he was going out to take the air for a little while. Ten minutes later two policemen came to tell me he had been run over."

MOTORCYCLE STRIKES WOMAN. Mrs. Gertrude Watson Seriously Injured at Sixth and Locust.

Mrs. Gertrude Watson, 59 years old, of 2321 Mullany street, head of the music department in a downtown store, was knocked down and seriously injured by a motor cycle at 10 a. m. today at Sixth and Locust streets.

Police reported that Mrs. Watson was crossing to the south when the traffic policeman had given the signal for east and west traffic. The rider of the motor cycle, George L. Woodward, 29, of 1851 South Twelfth street, was held pending outcome of her injuries. She suffered possible internal injuries.

Today, The Fascist agreed to withdraw the guard and to take no further part in the funeral arrangements. This decision ended a tense situation, but police announced that they would be on guard at the Church Monday to prevent any trouble.

Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, who arrived home from Europe yesterday aboard the Majestic, said: "We were shocked to learn of Valentino's death. It has saddened our return. We will attend his funeral Monday."

Mussolini Denies Authorizing Wreath or Fascist Guard. By the Associated Press. ROME, Aug. 26.—No funeral wreath or any other kind of official honor for Rudolph Valentino has been authorized in behalf of the Italian Government or Premier Mussolini. The government, the Associated Press states, has been officially informed, known nothing of a Fascist guard of honor posted at the bier of the dead screen actor.

BROTHER OF INFORMER SAYS PAIR TRIED TO KIDNAP HIM

Mistaken for Albert Rogers, Who Told Police about East Side Pay Car Holdup.

Joseph Rogers, 39 years old, of 3918A Garfield avenue, reported last night that an attempt had been made to kidnap him by men who apparently mistook him for his brother, Albert, an important State's witness in the robbery cases growing out of the $100,000 holdup of an East St. Louis & San Francisco pay car, July 19.

Rogers said he was at Vandeventer avenue and North Market street when a couple pulled up and a young man with a revolver ordered him to get in. When he inquired his name was Weber, not Rogers, he was released, he said. Albert Rogers has been under constant guard since he confessed complicity in the East Side robbery, police say.

CANADIAN POWER AGREEMENT. Dominion Permits Diversion of Water by Ontario. By the Associated Press. TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 24.—An agreement has been reached between the Dominion Government and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission permitting diversion of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from the Niagara district. It was announced today. Navigation will not be interfered with.

"As a matter of fact," said C. A. McGrath, chairman of the power commission, "we have been talking and using such water for a long time and this agreement makes no change in the situation. Under the agreement the Province of Ontario undertakes not to interfere with navigation rights and the agreement is drawn up in keeping with the provisions of the treaty now in force."

Multiplicity of "Wonderful." This calling effect was one, no, if one begins that, wonder, he said, "wonderful" as times as former Mayor Kiel's dedicatory speech. The speakers did not neglect that, and Stuart Barrie, taking his cue from them, began going, recurrently, "Wonderful!"

A line which extended west Eighth street, and flanked the cantile Trust Building on street, began entering the hall at 7:30 o'clock. Hospitality outran capacity, and many through the opening crowd, which continued from 8:30 p. m. Many expressions of praise were heard as to manner of handling the throng, guests, without avoidable crowding or delay.

In the grand lobby, besides number-adorned Moorish chandeliers and marble staircases, the first floor was a maze of flowers, many elaborate designs, tribute to the new theater and its builder, Charles, Spyros and George L. The second-floor promenade gave a view of the ornate ballroom and of spacious rooms.

The introductory speeches were brief and laudatory. Kiel was brief of ceremonies. He told, the enthusiasm of a builder, the theater and office building, been completed in less than months from the first breaking ground. Acting Mayor Neumann, President Meyer, Chamber of Commerce and Lieber of Indianapolis, motion picture producer and president of the First National Pictures, Inc., spoke of the three Skouras had left the speaking to them who did not appear on the program for a brief, but gave time to hospitality and detail direction.

"Star-Spangled Banner" Played. Before the speaking of the orchestra pit had ascended into view, piano rising last of all, and the organ console had reared its right. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played by organ and orchestra. The organ and orchestra had their introductory turn. Charles Previn directed 30 musicians, and his work began with the playing of the "Rienzi" overture. The evening he earnestly and fairly kept the orchestra instrumental tone for every requirement of stage display of every interlude.

During the music the lights were demonstrated. Grouped domes, lined with silver leaf, turned to a mass of stars with the lights clustered about each. In the mezzanine balcony boxes in the rear of the auditorium the closest view of these and saw an occasional bit of float downwards.

A brief news picture, a stage display, a grouping of five and entertainment feature one offering, began. A herald announced historic scenes, starting curtains showed a scene, pictures, brilliantly conceived, freshly costumed, but above fresh, new, spotless as no use renovate, display, the Gorgoneous Tabernacle.

Most gorgeous of the scene were the golden statue of Louis, with maidens in clo gold about it, and the Spanish

Former Mayor Kiel Presides at Ceremonies—Elaborate Stage Show
Given and Picture Shown

A few years ago—surely less than 20—the home of the motion picture show was a dingy tent or a stuffy storeroom. A piano of falling tone was the only accessory, the smoky walls were bare, and the name "nickelodeon" fitted the admission price, but otherwise seemed over-pretensions.

Today the St. Louis public is seeing the newest abode of the movies—the Ambassador Theater, vast groto of light, color, shimmer and opalescence. It was opened to the public this morning.

Last night 3000 or more holders of invitations attended the ceremonial opening, and luster and motion radiated from Seventh and Locust streets.

Outside the invited guests saw a clean, new 17-story building, simple in its architectural lines; with nothing in which the word "simple" might be applied. Decoration had been heaped upon decoration, and tint inlaid among tints until the eye turned for relief from sculpture, panel and molding to the silver pools of the "hanging ceiling," the largest of them a lake of restless blue.

Multiplicity of "Wonderfuls." This ceiling effect was won—but, no, if one begins that, one will be saying "wonderful" as many times as former Mayor Kiel did in his dedicatory speech. The other speakers did not neglect that adjective, and Stuart Barrie, perhaps taking his cue from them, kept the organ going "recurrently with 'Wonderful One'."

A line which extended west to Eighth street, and flanked the Mercantile Trust Building on that street, began entering the theater at 7:30 o'clock. Hospitality had outrun capacity, and many stood through the opening program, which continued from 8:30 to 11 p. m. Many expressions of praise were heard as to the manner of handling the throng of guests, without avoidable crowding or delay.

In the grand lobby, besides the amber-adorned Moorish chandeliers and marble staircase, the first, five found masses of flowers, with many elaborate designs, tributes to the new theater and its builders, Charles Skouras and George Skouras. The second-floor promenade gave a view of the ornate lobby, of paintings and of spacious rest rooms.

The introductory speeches were brief and laudatory. Kiel was master of ceremonies. He told, with the enthusiasm of a builder, how the theater and office building had been completed in less than 15 months from the first breaking of ground. Acting Mayor Neun followed, then President Meyer of the Chamber of Commerce and Robert Lieber of Indianapolis, motion picture producer and president of First National Pictures, Inc. All spoke of the three Skourases, who had left the speaking to them, and who did not appear on the stage even for a bow, but gave their time to hospitality and details of direction.

"Star-Spangled Banner" Played. Before the speaking the orchestra pit had ascended into view, the piano rising last of all, and the organ console had reared itself at the right. The "Star-Spangled Banner" was played by orchestra and organ. Then organ and orchestra had their introduction in turn. Charles Previn directed the 30 musicians, and his work only began with the playing of Wagner's "Rienzi" overture. Through the evening he earnestly and palpably kept the orchestra on its instrumental toes for every requirement of stage display or comedy interlude.

During the music the lighting effects were demonstrated. The grouped domes, lined with fluttering silver leaf, turned to auroral hues with the use of different lights clustered about each. Those in the mezzanine balcony boxes, and in the rear of the auditorium, had the closest view of these effects, and saw an occasional bit of film float downwards.

A brief news picture, and the stage display, a grouping of decorative and entertainment features in one offering, began. A herald announced historic scenes, and the pictures showed a series of pictures, brilliantly conceived and lavishly costumed, but above all, fresh, new, spotless as no used and renovated display could be.

Gorgeous Tableaux. Most gorgeous of the tableaux were the golden statue of Saint Louis, with maidens in cloth of gold about it, and the Spanish setting, which was preserved as lively and worth-while comedy, was furnished by a dance pair and a band-vocal team, and as 16 nimble girls, formerly the Missouri Rockers, won applause with dance maneuvers.

The hour's stage entertainment was followed by the film, "Pals First." It is a comedy of rough wayfarers in unusual surroundings, mixed with the pathos of a woman's loyalty. It amuses, and it raises the question whether one has the right to deceive innocent and trusting crooks, even for their own good. Also, it shows that a smart blow on the head with a blunt instrument may improve one's health and give new resources of ingenuity. Lloyd Hughes and Dolores del Rio were the stars of the film, made from a stage play in which Thomas A. Wise and William Courtenay were seen a few seasons ago.

Many of the guests remained after the show, to survey the interior from different viewpoints, and to hear attendants explain features of adornment and mechanism.

The Skourases, whose new achievement follows an ascent in 12 years from the proprietorship of one small picture theater, figure the investment in the theater and office building as somewhat more than $5,500,000, including the ground, and the cost of the theater, also including a proportionate part of the ground, as exceeding $2,500,000.

doors away, leaving 50 cents as a deposit, saying he wished to hammer some tire rims.

Murdered in His Chair. Standing above and behind the elderly Dutchman, Silberstein brought the hammer down on his head three times before the startled diners could stop him. The boy stood smilingly acquiescent as he was seized. The unconscious Calisch was removed to the Swedish Hospital, where he died three hours later.

When police came, Silberstein's manner did not change. "I did the job well," he said, "and I'm glad of it."

Further he would not go in explanation. "You have no brains," was his retort to all questions.

Before Magistrate McCloskey yesterday morning he appeared in his wide bell-bottom gray trousers and serge coat. Again he was smiling.

His worried mother explained to the Court she had taken him to a doctor a few days ago when he began to behave in a restless and upset manner, then tried to have him placed in the Neurological Institute in Manhattan. There was no room, and she was told to keep him under close observation until this week, when room would be found for him.

Got Out When Mother Was Away. "But," she said, "I had to go out for food and I thought his father would be right home, and the boy got out."

Silberstein's fixed smile aroused the Magistrate's ire. "What's so funny about this?" he asked. "Do you think it was funny to kill a man?" "I think it was funny to kill this fellow," "Why did you do it?" "I killed him."

"He is very violent," said Dr. Mortimer Scheerbaum, head of the Psychopathic ward in the hospital. "Perhaps we will take the full ten days to examine him, because of the seriousness of the case. He speaks of 'supermen' and scattered bits of psychology. He is dangerous."

Alfred A. Sanger said he would arrange for the burial of Calisch, who had no relatives in this country.

MAN TOURING AS KRUPP HEIR HELD
FOR BAD CHECK

"Baron Frederick E. von Krupp" Arrested in Albuquerque on Complaint of Denver Auto Agency.

By the Associated Press. ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 26.—The American tour of a young man giving the name of Baron Frederick E. von Krupp and claiming to be the son of the head of the German arms industry, was interrupted by the arrest of the "Baron" here on a charge of writing worthless checks.

The youth has been touring various parts of the country, visiting large manufacturing plants while he has been entertained as the son of the German arms manufacturer. When arrested he was traveling in a small automobile given him by Henry Ford.

The "Baron" was arrested here last night on complaint of John R. Probst, assistant manager of a Denver automobile agency, who said a $100 check given by the youth has been returned by a New York bank. Another check, for $50, drawn on another motor car agency in Colorado Springs also has been returned, Captain of Detectives Clark of Denver has been Visited General Electric Plant.

While in the East the youth visited the General Electric Works at Schenectady, N. Y., where he was entertained and cashed a check for a small amount, which one of his hosts said had not been honored. The youth declared last night he would waive extradition, and willingly go to Denver to face the charge. He denied having issued checks to any automobile agency anywhere. He admitted he had written checks for some $300 within the last few weeks.

Speaking with pronounced German accent, the young man, who is about 21, said he was at a loss to explain how a bad check charge could have been brought against him, unless his father had withdrawn money placed in his account in a New York bank.

Says Allowance Was Cut. He said he had received a letter recently while he was at Grand Canyon from his father, notifying him his allowance had been cut to $25 a week until he decided to return to Germany and enter the Leipzig Military Academy.

He visited Denver, Aug. 7 and 8, and from there went to Los Angeles, where public notice centered upon him after he was reported to have declared that the great Krupp factories would never again manufacture implements of war.

He talks freely of being acquainted with such men as Russell Firestone, Henry Ford, Edsel Ford, Thomas Edison, Gov. Smith and Harry Chandler, owner of the Los Angeles Times. He said Ford had given him the automobile while he was inspecting the Detroit plant.

A young man accompanying him here last night gave the name of Charles Taetsch of Newark, N. J., and claimed to be a student at Brown University, while Ford "Baron" said he attended Harvard University for two years before the last school year.

The Krupp secretariat in Berlin recently denied that any member of the family is touring America. As the name of the head of the Krupp Works is Baron Gustav Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach, it was explained the name "Frederick von Krupp" would be incorrect. The Von Bohlen have a son, Alfred, 20 years old, who is now in Germany with his family.

Denver Official Refuses to Issue Warrant for Prisoner. By the Associated Press. DENVER, Colo., Aug. 26.—The District Attorney's office today refused a warrant for "Baron George Frederick E. von Krupp," reported held at Albuquerque, N. M., on telegraphic advice from Denver police, who alleged he gave a worthless check for $100. Satisfaction of the allegation, attaches of the District Attorney's office stated today, awaits word from a New York bank on which the paper was drawn.

In Silberstein's pocket the police found a small vial of cyanide of potassium. In explanation he said that he was at first uncertain whether to take his own life or that of the man, for whose convincing argument that he was "a nut," philosophy had given him no other answer. It was on the spur of the moment, he said, that he decided it was more sensible to kill the other than himself.

One hour after he had been committed yesterday to the observation ward, Silberstein became violent and was placed in the hands and mumbled tearfully and incoherently as if he were engaged again in furious argument with Calisch. Broken phrases bearing relation to the Freudian theory, the arguments of Jung and kindred topics poured from his babbling lips.

"He is very violent," said Dr. Mortimer Scheerbaum, head of the Psychopathic ward in the hospital. "Perhaps we will take the full ten days to examine him, because of the seriousness of the case. He speaks of 'supermen' and scattered bits of psychology. He is dangerous."

Alfred A. Sanger said he would arrange for the burial of Calisch, who had no relatives in this country.

INQUIRY INTO RADIO MERGER
BY U. S. TRADE COMMISSION
New Contract Between Big Electrical Concerns Will Be Scrutinized.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Investigation of the radio industry is being undertaken by the Federal Trade Commission in connection with its general inquiry into charges made in the Senate of a General Electric monopoly in this country.

While officials of the commission declined today to discuss details of the inquiry, it is known a new contract entered into by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., The Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Co. and the Westinghouse Co.

The principal angle of the new contract reported to be the right given to the American Telephone and Telegraph to develop the inter-oceanic telephone. The agreement supersedes one made long ago and involving a radio patent pool.

Redevelopment by the telephone company of its broadcasting stations at Washington and New York to the Radio Corporation came at about the time the new agreement was entered into.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN FOUND DEAD IN EAST ALTON
Body Beside Road Between Bridges
Had Arms and Legs Broken
—No Accident Reported.

The body of an unidentified man was found beside the St. Louis-Alton State road, between the Milton and East Alton bridges at East Alton by Chief of Police Elmer T. Kennedy of East Alton, Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock. The man's arms and legs were broken and the skull fractured. No accident was reported to the police in Alton or nearby towns.

The body has been removed to the Bauer funeral establishment in Alton.

The man was about 35 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, had dark brown hair, dark complexion, gray eyes, weighed 175 pounds, and wore a hat with gray felt band, no coat or vest; cotton trousers, dark gray striped, and tan top shoes.

ST. LOUIS DAY AT EXPOSITION
IS SET FOR SEPT. 11
Y. W. C. A. Plans Pageant of Progress; Officers of State Women's Club Coming.

St. Louis day at the Greater St. Louis Exposition, which opens Sept. 4, has been set for Sept. 11, and on that day the Y. W. C. A. will present a pageant of progress. There will be speeches by Mayor Miller and other St. Louisans, a drill by the Fire Department and attendance of 400 women's club officers from all over the State.

As an additional feature, there will be a college dog show. Labor day, Sept. 6. The show will be held on the northwest side of the exposition grounds and no entrance fee is required.

But Mrs. Canis still believed Mrs. Hurley hadn't paid the rent money. She met Mrs. Hurley in the back yard on June 28, 1925, and said, "Give me that rent money."

"I won't," said Mrs. Hurley. "Make your children bring back my ice cream freezer and pop bottles."

Then Mrs. Canis and Mrs. Hurley engaged in a fight. Precipitous were the consequences. Mrs. Hurley prosecuted Mrs. Canis in Justice of the Peace Court for disturbing her peace, assault and battery. Mrs. Canis escaped a fine. Then Mrs. Hurley brought suit for $5000 damages in City Court and won a verdict of $218.

"Pay her!" said Mrs. Canis in jail at Belleville today. "That's the last thing on earth I'll do."

"Pay Her?" said Mr. Canis at his grocery store, "not I. If I want to stay in jail it is all right with me. I will take care of the children and cook for them till she gets out."

Jail Costs Will Total $180. Mrs. Hurley, through her attorney, made it known that she has as strong a will as her opponents. She has paid $15 advance on Mrs. Canis' board bill at the jail, enough to keep Mrs. Canis in jail for 15 days. It will cost Mrs. Hurley $150 to keep Mrs. Canis in jail for six months in a vain effort to collect $218. But she has made up her mind to do it.

There have been three similar debtor-creditor cases on the east side in the last two years, in which creditors kept their debtors in jail from one day to two months.

WOMAN, IN JAIL FOR
'DEBT,' REFUSES TO PAY
And Holder of $218 Judgment Says She Will Meet Jail Expenses Six Months.

Mrs. Canis is in jail. Mrs. Hurley put her there. Mrs. Canis says she'll stay in jail for six months before she will pay Mrs. Hurley a cent of the $218 awarded Mrs. Hurley by the City Court of East St. Louis for civil damages, and Mrs. Canis and her husband, Mr. Canis, will pay that money or stay in jail the full six months.

The law in the case is all on Mrs. Hurley's side. Under an old Illinois statute a creditor may invoke a "capias of satisfaction" against a debtor who refuses to pay an unpaid bill or note, and Mrs. Hurley says Mrs. Canis will pay that money or stay in jail the full six months.

Orders went out from police headquarters to arrest every person within miles of the scene of the shooting who may possibly cast the slightest light on solving the mystery. While the man hunt was under way, persons in every walk of life paid tribute to the memory of the officer, who was one of the most popular on the Joplin police department.

Plans also went forward for subscribing a large reward for the slayers' apprehension.

JOPLIN POLICE RENEW SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF DETECTIVE
Substantial Reward May Be Offered by Business Men for Capture.

By the Associated Press. JOPLIN, Mo., Aug. 26.—Efforts to uncover clues leading to the apprehension of the man who Tuesday night murdered Jesse F. Laster, Chief of Detectives, have been redoubled as the force of local police and county authorities was augmented by dozens of officers from nearby towns in Missouri and Kansas.

Orders went out from police headquarters to arrest every person within miles of the scene of the shooting who may possibly cast the slightest light on solving the mystery. While the man hunt was under way, persons in every walk of life paid tribute to the memory of the officer, who was one of the most popular on the Joplin police department.

DOUBLE WEDDING, NOW
DOUBLE DIVORCE SUIT
Girls, Who Married Summers Brothers Last May, Begin Action at Clayton.

A Meramec River romance of early summer struck a premature cold spell yesterday, it was learned, when two of the participants filed divorce suits in Circuit Court at Clayton against the remaining two brothers whom they met at Valley Park.

It was last May 12 that John and William Summers, who have a canoe concession at Valley Park, called on Justice of the Peace Weremeyer with Eunice Hilker and Loretta Walsh. Both Miss Hilker and Miss Walsh had been spending their summers at the river for three years, it was explained, and they and the brothers had finally decided to marry.

So Miss Hilker and John and Miss Walsh and William were married. Yesterday, inseparable in divorce as they had been in marriage, the two young women visited Robert L. Stanton, former Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, and announced that the romance was over.

In a divorce suit filed by Stanton for Mrs. John Summers, the former Eunice Hilker charges her husband drank to excess, associated with other women, failed to provide her with an adequate home, forcing her to live in a river clubhouse and making her work for him without pay in his concession.

The former Miss Walsh charges William Summers made her work in John's concession, drank frequently after the first week of their marriage, was angry and irritable and on several occasions locked her out of their clubhouse home.

The plaintiffs ask for restoration of their maiden names and alimony.

YOUTH THOUGHT SHARK VICTIM
By the Associated Press. SEASIDE HEIGHTS, N. J., Aug. 26.—The decapitated and limbless body of Charles A. Burke, 18 years old, of Trenton was washed up on the beach yesterday, strengthening the belief that he was snatched from the arms of a rescuer by sharks.

An unidentified bather who went to the youth's rescue Tuesday explained his failure to bring him in by saying the boy was pulled from his grasp by a large fish. Later in the day persons on the beach saw three sharks. Coroner David O. Parker of Ocean County said the body had been attacked by sharks.

For Roads That Lead Beyond the Sunset

You would never think of calling Old Madeira a wine. It is a wine, of course—a very enchanting wine, if you will—but above and beyond that it is Old Madeira, and one would not think of using a lesser word.

To think or speak of Wills Sainte Claire simply as a quality motor car, would be missing half the point.

Wills Sainte Claire is an individual creation; as distinctly different from all other fine cars as Old Madeira is different from all other quality wines.

There's a tang and flavor to this brilliant product that captivates the imagination.

You think of Deauville, Ascot or Monte Carlo when you see it, and when you take the wheel you think of far places and the glory of roads that lead beyond the Sunset.

GIRL INJURED IN FALL FROM ATTIC WINDOW

Mary Palmer, 18, Thought to Have Plunged From Third-Story When Walking in Sleep.

Somnambulism is thought to have been responsible for the serious injury early today of Miss Mary Palmer, 18 years old, of 1223 Jones street, who fell from a third-story window to a concrete walk in the rear of that address.

Frank Haegle of 1221 Jones was aroused at 6 o'clock by the barking of his two dogs. He went to the dog house in the rear yard and found Miss Palmer, in night attire, a few feet away, in the adjoining yard. She was unconscious and City Hospital physicians found she had suffered a skull fracture.

For two months Miss Palmer has roomed at the home of Matthias Burg, occupying a third-floor attic room, the window of which opened on a flat roof. This window was found open this morning and presumably Miss Palmer had walked through it and dropped below. She made no outcry—at least, none was heard.

Until a few weeks ago she was employed in a cap factory. Last night she sat on the front porch of her rooming house and engaged in conversation with another roomer, during which she said she was in the habit of walking in her sleep.

Miss Palmer has no relatives here. It is not known how long she has been in St. Louis. She came here from Denver, where her mother resides. It was erroneously stated in the Home Edition of the Post-Dispatch that Miss Palmer had died.

STATE DEPARTMENT PUBLISHES U. S. NOTICE TO CHINA TO PAY

Use of Revenue to Get New Loans Termed Bad Faith Toward American Creditors.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The State Department published yesterday the note of "emphatic protest" which Minister MacMurray has delivered to the Pekin Government in an effort to induce the payment of obligations due American banking, shipping and industrial houses and to prevent the pledging of customs surplus moneys as security for a new domestic loan.

The note said the American legation in Pekin had been compelled to deny specifically "the justice of the position adopted by the Chinese Government to the effect that the consolidated domestic loans enjoy a preferential right to the use of customs surplus funds after services of the pre-Boxer loans, the Boxer indemnities and the reorganization loan of 1913 have been met."

"The American legation," the note added, "therefore insists that the Chinese authorities concerned have no right to utilize as the security for new domestic financing the amount of approximately $11,000,000 per annum to become available upon the extinction of the ninth year domestic loan and could only regard any such action taken by the Chinese authorities as further failure to observe good faith towards the American creditors of China. The American legation therefore emphatically protests against the issuance of the reported $25,000,000 domestic loan bonds."

BOY CHASING DOG STRUCK BY AUTO AND SERIOUSLY INJURED

Pursuing a dog, Herman Dugo, 12 years old, of 4325 Fyler avenue, ran into the alley in the rear of his home at 7 p. m. yesterday and was struck by a passing automobile. He suffered a fractured skull and ribs and internal injuries. He was taken to City Hospital, where his condition is reported critical.

The driver, William C. Nestle, of 4352A Humphrey street, said the boy darted into the path of the machine before he could stop.

RECOUNT REFUSED IN PRIMARY CONTESTS

Election Board Finds Attacks on Chouteau and Commit-woman Schopp, Vague.

The Board of Election Commissioners yesterday unanimously refused to open the ballot boxes in the Eleventh Congressional District to recount the vote on the allegations of fraud filed by William Gray and Bernard P. Boggy, contesting the nomination of Henri Chouteau on the Republican ticket for Congress.

The official count gave Chouteau 7149; Gray, 6546; Boggy, 4536, and White, 1143.

General allegations of fraud and irregularity were made in the petition for the recount filed by Attorney Peter T. Barrett for both Gray and Boggy.

One of the allegations in the petition called to the attention of the Board by Henry S. Caulfield, attorney for Chouteau, in arguing that the charges of fraud were not based upon reliable information, was the assertion that the Board of Election Commissioners had counted 100 absentee ballots for Chouteau that were not legally cast for him. Caulfield pointed out that the records in the Election Commission's office showed only 59 absentee ballots received by the board and of that number only 25 were in proper form to be counted as legal ballots and that only two absentee ballots were counted that expressed a choice for the nomination for Congress in the Eleventh District.

"A Fishing Expedition." The board members expressed the opinion that the petition was only a "fishing expedition" and the petitioners did not have any specific evidence of fraud.

A charge in the petition that certain unnamed individuals visited the polling places in the Eleventh District representing Chouteau and displaying $10 and $20 bills to judges and clerks of election, the members of the board said, should be called to the attention of the Circuit Attorney for investigation, if the petitioners had any evidence to support the allegation.

The board also declined to order a recount of the vote cast for Republican committeewoman in the Fifteenth Ward on the application of Mr. E. G. Holthaus, former committeewoman, who was defeated by Miss Eva Marie Schopp by 26 majority, the vote being 1686 for Miss Schopp and 1650 for Mrs. Holthaus.

Commissioner Fahy voted to order the recount on this petition, which he said contained more specific allegations, particularly in one instance, in which it was alleged a judge helped a voter prepare a ballot in a booth contrary to the law. The other three members, Chairman Elgel, Wilson and Playner, contended that the allegations were vague and indefinite and as the law left the matter to their discretion as to whether a recount should be ordered, that it was their opinion there had not been sufficient evidence of fraud or irregularity produced to justify a recount.

INSURANCE FIRM WINS REVIEW OF ST. LOUIS TAX ASSESSMENTS

Supreme Court Grants Writ of Certiorari to Citizens' Insurance Company of Missouri.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 26.—The Supreme Court en banc yesterday granted a writ of certiorari sought by the Citizens' Insurance Co. of Missouri, which has its principal offices in St. Louis, against City Assessor Gehner of St. Louis and the Board of Equalization of that city, to permit a review of assessments against the company before the Supreme Court en banc.

The Assessor and the board last April, the insurance company said, violated Section 6286 of the State laws, which permits exemption from taxation of the net value of the company's assets in excess of the legally required reserve necessary to reinsure outstanding risks and unpaid policy claims.

The writ is returnable in 30 days.

WOUNDED IN PRISON FIGHTBy the Associated Press.
MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Aug.
26.—Three guards and a Negro convict were wounded in a fight at the West Virginia Penitentiary yesterday.
Waverley C. Childers, the wounded convict, protested to John H. Gilliland, guard, about the amount of work assigned to him in the prison shirt factory. The convict, ordered to the office of the captain of the guards, refused to obey. Approached by Gilliland, Childers drew a four-inch knife of the kind used in the whip factory and stabbed the guard in the neck and back. Gilliland shot twice as he fell, striking the Negro in the side and thigh.As guards went to Gilliland's aid, Children, but after a brief fight the two other Negro convicts joined prisoners were subdued.

GOODING RENAMED IN IDAHO
G. O. P. Nominee for U. S. Senatorship; Democrats Hit World Court.
By the Associated Press.
WEISER, Idaho, Aug. 26.—
Frank R. Gooding, junior United States Senator from Idaho, was renominated by the Republican State Convention here yesterday. H. C.
Baldridge, Parma, present Lieutenant-Governor, was chosen as the party's candidate for Governor. The platform adopted placed the party
on record as opposed to participation in the World Court. A plank calling for Federal agricultural relief legislation was included.
At McCall the Democrats adopted a platform calling for a direct
State primary law and demanding Federal legislation for the relief of agriculture. John P. Nugent, Boise, was named as the party's can-

Ones on removal charges, has been merely acting chief for the last 11 years. Carter, who succeeded Frankhouser, is fighting for reelection. Meanwhile Ross Cunningham, promoted from the ranks, is serving as chief.

At the same time, Carter's suspension a few weeks ago Mayor John Patton temporarily disappeared when a group of church people petitioned the Common Pleas Court for his removal. Patton named a Justice of the Peace to act as Mayor during his absence, but the president of the church, who is not a Justice of the Peace, contended that he was the only legal acting Mayor. While both claimed the office, Mayor Patton returned to fight the court order removing him.

FINED FOR SELLING TRANSFER IN TEST SUIT; WILL APPEAL

Attorney Packman Prepared to Carry Attack on City Ordinance to Supreme Court.

Victor Packman, an attorney, was fined $10 and costs by Provisional Police Judge Rensler today on a charge of selling a street car transfer for two cents.

Packman sold a street car transfer last Tuesday to a friend in the presence of a policeman to make a case testing the validity of City Ordinance 27,887, which prohibits the sale of street car transfers.

He announced he would appeal to the Court of Criminal Correction and carry the case to the Supreme Court if necessary. He holds the ordinance to be discriminatory because it permits traffic in bus transfers and other ticket forms.

NEW LONG WEARING STEEL

Pittsburg Concern to Make Metal With Soft Core.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 26.—The development of a new steel product—steel with a great wear resistance surface, but a soft core—is announced by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation. Metallurgists described the product as "a combination of steel elements never before obtained." "Jalcase," will reduce production costs and speed up output of parts for automobiles, washing machines, other household appliances, typewriters and adding machines, shoe and textile machines, and equipment where steel of great wear resistance is required for moving parts, company officials said. Heretofore, according to metallurgists, steel used in moving parts was hard throughout. Jalcase, they said, with its hard surface and soft core, possesses a triple combination of fast machining, case hardening and forging properties.

SPORTS RIVALRY LEADS TO HOSPITAL; NEGRO NEAR DEATH

Shot by Friend Who "Outwrestled and Outboxed" Him and Took Threat Seriously.

Thomas L. Singleton, 19 years old, of 1722 Linden street, a Negro, "outwrestled, outboxed and out-horseshoe-pitched" his friend, Rufus Love, 19, of 1720 Linden street, also a Negro, and Rufus became angry. "Some time, black boy," Rufus told Thomas, "I'll whittle you down to my size."

Thomas considered this a threat against his life and loaded his single-barreled shotgun with buckshot. Yesterday, when Rufus appeared at the bottom of the back stairs leading to Thomas' room, Thomas thought he looked "real mean." So Thomas got out his shotgun and filled Rufus' head with buckshot. Rufus is near death at city hospital No. 2. Police are holding Thomas.

Rich

in flavor... that's why Quaker Oats entices youngsters

THE way to make children like oatmeal is to give them the kind they like.

Thus millions of mothers insist on the Quaker brand. Children who ordinarily don't like oats, take readily to this rich and tasty kind.

Quaker flavor is due to exclusive milling processes which took some 50 years to perfect. Processes, too, which retain much of the "bulk" of oats, which makes laxatives less often needed.

Thus protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and "bulk" are combined in making Quaker Oats an excellent food balance.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. Thus makes the richest breakfast the quickest.

The price is the same as for ordinary oats. When a substitute is accepted, you alone are the loser.

W. B. Weisenburger Urges Abolition of Tariff Barriers Between European States.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Delegates from the St. Louis, Mo. Chamber of Commerce who are touring Europe were guests today at a luncheon given by Berlin Chamber of Commerce.

The function was attended by the American Ambassador, Consul General, representatives of the German Foreign Office and many of the leading men in German industry.

W. B. Weisenburger, chairman in charge of arrangements for the tour, in a speech urged that the tariff barriers between European states be abolished, along the lines of the system that obtains in the American union. He also urged a new type of business statesman to supplement the political diplomat in world negotiations.

The banner sale of the August events. A marvelous assemblage of authentic Winter Coat modes. A price that represents savings which will no doubt be even greater by Fall, since the strike of tailors who make these Coats, shows no sign of settlement.

The woollens in these Coats are from voted mills. Included are fawnskin, Venise, estrella, valsheen, juppoint, glowana, dubloom, Yolanda, etc. Chanel red, jungle green, new blues, wine shades, brick-red, gray, black and others.

Another advantage of August buying is the splendid selection of beautiful fur trims in new collar, cuff and panel designs. Featured are beaver, natural or dyed squirrel, fox in several shades, platinum wolf, muskrat, Manchurian wolf, vicuna fox and others.

An important feature of this sale is a group of several score of handsome samples just released from the makers' showrooms. Notable among the 386 Coats offered for Friday are the new slender silhouettes, the ultra-modish blouses, dolman sleeves and the elaborate use of rich furs on new collars, huge cuffs and panels.

IMMUNITY PLEA IN ROY T. MYERS' TRIAL

Former Cashier of Defunct
Gorin, Mo., Bank Confessed Illegal Transactions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 26.—The effort of Roy T. Myers, cashier of the closed Citizens' Trust Co. of Gorin, Scotland County, to escape prosecution on two charges of accepting deposits in a failing institution, was before Judge Cooley in Circuit Court here today. The trust company was closed in July, 1924.

Myers' lawyer asked that the indictments be quashed, on the ground that Myers, before making a confession, had received assurance of immunity from Attorney-General Otto, now a Judge of the Supreme Court. The State holds that the Attorney-General had no right to make such a promise, and that if made, the promise was not binding upon the prosecuting Attorney of Scotland County, from which the case came here on a change of venue.

Myers, testifying yesterday afternoon, said he was promised by Attorney-General Otto, in a hotel in El Paso, Tex., that if he would tell all the facts and circumstances involving Frank C. Millsbaugh, who was State Finance Commissioner at the time of the closing, Myers would not be prosecuted.

Judge Otto is on his way here from Jefferson City, and will testify tomorrow. No jury has been selected, pending a decision on Myers' motion.

Promise of Immunity.

Curtis A. Betts, a member of the Post-Dispatch staff, was one of the witnesses. He testified to facts and circumstances leading up to the conference held with Myers at El Paso. He told of the confession made by Myers at El Paso, in which Myers accused Millsbaugh of having had knowledge that the trust company was in a failing condition, but permitting it to continue operation. Millsbaugh was indicted on two charges of neglect of official duty. He was freed on technical grounds when his case came up in the Clark County Circuit Court at Kahoka.

In his testimony, Betts stated that, while a committee of the State Senate was investigating various

"A Difference"

MISS FRANCES KRUG

"You wouldn't believe what a difference Black and White Cleansing Cream is making in my complexion," says attractive Miss Frances Krug, of 222 Riverside Drive, New York City. "This soft, milky cream searches every pore for dust and powder, and simply won't let a blackhead form. It leaves my skin 'spic and span'—fresh, immaculate and lovely to look at and touch."

Today get a 50c or 25c can of Black and White Cleansing Cream from your dealer. Smooth a bit on your face, neck and arms, and after a few minutes remove with a soft cloth. You'll be amazed to see the dirt fairly roll out from your skin, and still more surprised to find a marvelous improvement, noticeable even after a week of such treatment.

If your dealer doesn't have the Black and White Beauty Creations you want, send his name to Plough, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive free a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

departments, he got information that Myers had a case of correspondence, and was willing to talk. Betts said that Otto authorized him to talk with Roy Myers. He said he was authorized to assure Myers that, if he made a confession, and if evidence showed Millsbaugh guilty of any crime, Myers would receive immunity. Letters Urged Secrecy. The Attorney-General explained, Betts said, that he could not make such a promise personally and directly without the danger of impairing the value of Myers as a witness. Conferences of Roy Myers' brother, Orville Myers, and Roy's lawyer, with the Attorney-General in Tulsa, Ok., and Jefferson City, were related by Betts. The witness told of the El Paso meeting, and said he heard no promise of immunity made by Otto, but that the matter of immunity was discussed by others, in Otto's presence, without comment by him. A letter of Otto, asking for a later conference with Roy Myers, and emphasizing the need for secrecy, was introduced.

ASSAULT CHARGE MADE AFTER AUTO STRIKES BOY

Glen Hawley of Dupo Also Accused of Driving When Intoxicated.

Information charging assault
with a deadly weapon and driving a motor vehicle on a State highway while intoxicated, were filed yesterday in the County Court at Belleville against Glen Hawley of Dupo, Ill.

The information grow out of an automobile accident in which a machine driven by Hawley seriously injured Elmer Zebos, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Zebos, living near Dupo. Tuesday afternoon. Bonds were fixed at $4000 on the first charge and $2000 on the second.

WILL NOT USE PAYMENTS ON WAR DEBTS TO CUT TAXES

Treasury Applies Receipts From Foreign Loans to Retiring
the Public Debt.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Treasury has no intention of changing its present fiscal policy so as to use war debt interest receipts to bring about another tax reduction.
Acting Secretary Winston, said
today it was considered necessary that the $150,000,000 coming in annually from war debt interest payments be applied to retirement of the public debt. Usually the payments are made in United States bonds. If these payments were to be made available for tax reduction, it would be necessary to resell these securities, and the Treasury holds that step impracticable. The Treasury faces a severe task furthermore, in retiring
the Liberty Loan bonds, which mature in 1928 and of which $2,500,- 000,000 are outstanding.

COOLIDGE GETS ROSY REPORT ON ELECTION OUTLOOK

SUGGESTS UPWARD REVISION OF TARIFF

President Goes to Plattsburg and Reviews Citizen Soldiers at Military Training Camp.

By the Associated Press.

PLATTSBURGH, BARRACKS,
N. Y., Aug. 26.—The regiment from New York, Delaware and New Jersey, composing the second citizens'
military training camp at Plattsburg Barracks passed in review
today before President Coolidge.

Coming here by automobile from the Adirondack camp for his first public appearance since he left Washington on his vacation more than seven weeks ago, President Coolidge received a cordial welcome from the citizens and full military honors from the troops.
The regiment of citizen soldiers, 400 strong, was drawn up on the parade ground when Mr. Coolidge arrived and after a brief reception
in the house of Col. John H.
Fishes, commanding the President stepped to the stand. The troops then marched by in field equipment.

The regular twenty-sixth infantry, stationed at the post, was drawn up at present-arms when the President arrived at the military reservation.

Major General Charles A. Summerall, commanding the second
camp area at Governors' Island,
was with Col. Hughes at the commandant's house to receive the President, and after the review,
which lasted about 20 minutes,
Mr. Coolidge returned to the house for luncheon. He planned to return to Paul Smiths in the Adirondacks
this afternoon.

Major Report on Political Outlook.
By the Associated Press.
PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—
The Republicans will elect in November a working majority of at least 25 in the national House of Representatives, President Coolidge told yesterday by Representative Wood of Indiana, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

The present working majority is 15, but Wood said it was to be expected that some seats might be won in an off year.

Prosperity is the issue, Wood said. The Democrats have attempted to make the tariff the issue, he added, but the farmers are for protection.

Upward Revision of Tariff.
Expressing the opinion that there would be no piecemeal revision
of the tariff, Wood said there would be no general revision until after the next presidential election and if then, it would be a revision upward.

The cry of "corruption" in states
where there have been large expenditures in primary contests,
Wood declared, would have little effect in the country. After all,
he said, there has been less violation of the law in elections in all the Northern and Western states in the last 20 years than in a single Southern state in a single year.

'Leave to Print'

English "Inefficiency."
Tea Before Business.
No Deposits; No Duns; No
Failures.
The Graceful Method.

LONDON, Aug. 18.
HAVE the efficiency experts
been kidding us all the time?
To observe British methods
makes one wonder whether there is anything in this efficiency business. Outwardly, at least, the English type were the people to be found. There is no system,
no snap, no card index, no time clock, no nothing. Things just seem to rock along, apparently headed straight for the devil—and what is the result? The result, after several centuries of "inefficiency" that would make an American business man despair, is the greatest empire
in human history, with the most democratic system of government,
the swiftest and surest administration of justice, domination of world finance, and the most complete and far-reaching network of commerce ever perfected.

THE other afternoon I was in the office of a solicitor, what we probably would call an "office lawyer." Nowhere was there filing cabinet. Papers bound in legal type were piled high in the corners. Law books were stacked on tables and chairs. It was an attic sort of place. Members of the firm were having tea in one room and the clerks were doing likewise in another. This, I had been told, was one of the most successful law firms in London. Certainly the practice of law in this country is as keen and competitive as it is at home. The courts are stricter and severer, and cases are tried with much greater dispatch, and, one suspects, greater thoroughness. Yet here the lawyers, without card indexes, filing cabinets, law libraries, dictographs or any of the sleek paraphernalia which garnishes the American law office.

BUSINESS is conducted on much the same lines. No attempt is made to "sell" one. The scientific salesman, as we know him,
Nor is it likely that he would succeed. His technique, I feel, would in most cases be regarded as palpable cheek, and not to be suffered.
But British trade is a synonym for a commerce which penetrates into every corner of the world. There have been no such merchants since the Phenicians. They got it done with astonishing ease and with an enjoyable absence of sweat and bluster. And find plenty of time to play.

YEARS ago the writer asked a distinguished Briton, who knows America, what he regarded as our outstanding national fault. He promptly replied: "The way in which you undervalue leisure."
AN acquaintance here tells me that he never pays a tailor bill
in less than two years. When ordering the summer suit for 1926,
he pays for the one he got in the summer of 1924. It would be extremely unusual to receive a bill
in less than a year, he says; in fact, it would be tantamount to a notice that one's patronage was no longer desired. Yet nobody ever heard of a London tailor going bankrupt. Eventually they get their money. After all, what's the harm the tailor probably reasons. He is collecting now for the suits he sold
two or three years ago, and in two or three years he will be collecting for the ones he sells now. The old firm has been rocking along for 75 years, so why get into a sweat?

As a matter of fact, the percentage of business failures in Great Britain is infinitesimal compared to that in the United States.
ONE gravely suspects that we have been oversold on the "efficiency" game. It is just possible that "efficiency," as Americans practice it, is a name for the madness and busyness of substituting routine and mechanics for intelligence and individual effort. We have the intelligence, but there seems to be a general campaign for eliminating it wherever possible and substituting mechanics. I think it would be well, before we are wholly committed to the program of making mechanical toys of ourselves, to reflect on the fact that, after all,
the Germans do that sort of thing much better than any other people could possibly do it.

PAUL Y. ANDERSON. were greater under the Coolidge than under the Wilson administration, the Democratic Committee conceded, it is "constructive economy" is evidently the sort that "saves at the spigot and wastes at the bung-hole."
Madden, after conferring with President Coolidge on Government finances, estimated that proposed expenditures for the fiscal year 1927 would be perhaps a quarter of a billion dollars less than actual expenditures in the current fiscal year.
Democratic Estimates.
The Democratic Committee
placed the total appropriations for the fiscal year 1927 at $2,567,054.
Included in this were items
totaling $1,915,995,973, for interest on public debt, sinking fund and other debt funds, Veterans' Bureau,
insurance, adjusted compensation,

THOMPSON SEES EXAMPLE OF MORO-CHRISTIAN FRICTION

One Faction Accuses Other of Breaking Faith on Plans of Reception.

By the Associated Press.
ZAMBOANGA, P. I., Aug. 26.—
Some of the friction between Moros and Christian Filipinos of this section was witnessed by Carmi
A. Thompson, President Coolidge's personal representative in the Philippines, when he arrived here today with his party on a tour of the island.

The Moros accused the Filipinos
of breaking an agreement with them that each should share equally in the demonstration in connection with Thompson's reception.
Two thousand Filipinos assembled at the pier with independence placards, but before Thompson disembarked Col. Luther Stevens, constantly commander, went aboard the steamer Mindanao and formed him of the differences.
The Moros said that it was agreed that both Moros and Filipinos should occupy positions in the piazza, but that the Christian Filipinos broke their promise and rushed to the pier to welcome the visitors.

The Filipino Governor addressed
the people at the pier, urging them to return to the piazza. Addressing Thompson, the Governor said: "We want you for our next Governor-General."
Thompson said he regretted the incident at the pier. Later on, he said the United States military reservation, Thompson addressed the Moros, who displayed placards
reading:
"We don't want independence.
The Moros are not with the Christian Filipinos in asking independence."
Young Catholics Raid Fascist.

MANTUA, Italy, Aug. 26.—Members of the Young Catholic party
returning from a religious festival at Castiglione wrecked the local headquarters of the Fascists,
smashing the furniture, tearing up documents and tearing down flags.
Deputy Arriva Bene, the Fascist political secretary, prevented any hospitalization and hospital construction, and for the Shipping Board and Fleet Corporation.

Recalling that $32,713,000 was appropriated in 1916 for interest on the public debt and for sinking fund, the committee arrived at $1-$30,233,972 as the net amount of current appropriations properly allowable to the World War. To this it added $41,713,106 for prohibition enforcement and $106,7-675,000 for highway construction in co-operation with states and for forest reserve roads, which did not confront the Government in 1916.
By subtracting this grand total,
$1,918,672,078, from the 1927 appropriations figure, the committee
fixed $1,588,382,465 as the amount comparable with the 1916 appropriations of $500,245,039, and found "peace time appropriations greater under Coolidge than Wilson by $788,137,426."
"With postal service counted in,"
the statement continued, "appropriations for the fiscal year 1927
are $4,409,377,454, or $470,886,- 681 greater than for 1926; and now executive budget estimates for 1928
show $55,000,000 more than for 1927."

POPE ENCOURAGES MEXICAN PILGRIMS

Says They Must Not Doubt the Triumph of Religious Cause.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., (New York World)
ROME, Aug. 26.—Receiving 18
Mexican pilgrims in a private audience, Pope Pius yesterday expressed great sorrow at the sufferings of Mexican Catholics and said they should hold fast to their faith despite persecution, as did the early Christians in the days of Nero.
A crown of glory awaits those who hold out, he said.

The Pontiff said that the prayers of the entire Christian world are interceding in Heaven for the sufferers. He spends much time each day praying for them.
"But we must not doubt that divine help will make the religious cause triumph," he added.
His Holiness and the pilgrims
were much moved during the audience, the Pope's eyes filling with tears as he spoke. The pilgrims left, saying they had been greatly comforted.
Kellogg Says Sheffield Will Return to Mexico.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Mexican affairs were discussed by Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador Sheffield yesterday, but the only official statement was an affirmation by the Secretary that Sheffield
will continue at his post.
Contradicting reports that Sheffield
would resign, the Secretary
said the Ambassador would return to Mexico City on expiration of his leave of absence. He expressed
"absolute confidence" in Sheffield and declared the department "does not desire him to resign."

Kellogg declined to discuss other phases of the conference, but there were indications that it was concerned mainly with the situation in the Southern republic which prompted the Secretary a year ago
to issue a statement declaring Mexico was on trial before the world.
That pronouncement received the support of the Washington Government only as long as it protected American lives and American rights and complied with international obligations.
The State Department apparently is comparatively satisfied on the subject of the negotiations under way over land and petroleum laws.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—The Howard brothers, Albert and John,
who were arrested after the disappearance of their father, John F.
Howard, have been released. The police have found the father at

'NEW TEACHER' HOPES TO BRING HAPPINESS

Krishnamurti, Arriving in America, Says Joy Is Found on Spiritual Plane.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Jiddu Krishnamurti, expected by Theosophists to become a new world
teacher, hopes to show "Jazz-mad" America how it can attain real happiness.
"My message to the whole world
is happiness," he said, "but happiness is not found in the material,
but in the spiritual plane."
"I do not call your Jazz-mad modern America happy: it is not real happiness, but only material happiness."
"I do not preach repentance or the remission of sins. I believe it is much more important to lead a good life, refraining from doing harmful things to yourself and others, being kind and tolerant."

Krishnamurti, who arrived on the Majestic yesterday, does not regard himself as a second Messiah,
but as "the vehicle for the world teacher."
"That spirit has already made use of my body to speak," he said.
Theosophists hold that Jesus became the Christ because the world teacher, My Lord Maitreya, entered his body and Gautama became the Buddha by the same means.
Krishnamurti is called by the affectionate diminutive "Krishnaji" by his followers. He is 30 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, has black hair
weighs hardly more than 100 pounds and was described by a feminine fellow passenger as "beautiful" because, it was said, his features are almost feminine.
Krishnamurti believes in marriage, but not for himself. He plays tennis, swims, reads a great deal,
and finds pleasure in other normal ways, but does not eat meat or drink wine.
As for girls smoking, he says
"That is a matter of taste, but I do not think it is common sense."
Mrs. Anne Besant, 80-year-old head of the Theosophists, who "discovered" Krishnamurti in 1909, accompanied him here.
Krishnamurti's arrival not only evoked anonymous protests against his entry on the grounds of moral turpitude, which were ignored, but aroused Protestant pastors at a general Bible conference at Stony Brook, N. Y.
Dr. David G. Wylie, Presbyterian, branded Krishnamurti as "ridiculous" and his doctrine as ancient Hindu beliefs dressed up for modern use.
Dr. F. B. Meyer, London Non-conformist, said: "I think this man has been hypnotized by Mrs.
Besant."

ers had nothing to do with their father's disappearance.
After being found, John Howard again disappeared. Police report that he left his Puebla hotel and abandoned the automobile in which he traveled to Mexico City, and that his present whereabouts is unknown.

ITALY TO ABOLISH INDIVIDUAL VOTING

Plan Is to Elect Deputies by Organizations, Restricted to Fascists.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Aug. 26.—Italian women
may lose the right to vote before they have had a chance to cast a ballot.
They won the right to vote at municipal elections at the last legislative session of Parliament after many years' struggle. But Fascist decrees probably will abolish all municipal elections. This decree,
according to a semi-official statement, will be adopted at a meeting of the council of ministers next Tuesday.
The right of suffrage which the women lost is nominal because the suffrage measure not only restricted the right to municipal elections,
but allowed the privilege only to a small proportion of women. Only women who might be styled
"prominent," "official," "war widows" and the like were to have suffrage.
Suspension of Elections.
A more important aspect of the cabinet's coming decree is that it strikes down the Government's purpose gradually to legalize the temporary suspension of all elections, recently ordered by Mussolini, in order to enable the Fascist party to crush certain local elements that were refusing to accept the dictates of a central authority.
The first step was taken early in the year with the abolition of communal elections in 8000 villages of less than 5000 population. In these villages the Fascist Ministry of the Interior placed trusted men
to serve as podestas—a system used widely in Italy in the middle ages.
Later this podesta system was extended to a great number of places known as health resorts or within the earthquake zone. Rome was placed under a Governor.
Naples was placed under a high commissioner and Milan under a special commissioner.
The cabinet's new decree is based, the official assertion goes,
upon the success attained throughout the country. After its adoption citizens in towns and cities will have no voice in the choice of the podestas or commissioners who will govern them.
Election by Groups.
Legally, Italian citizens will have a right to vote in two types of elections. Each group of communes elects provincial councillor and each citizen votes for deputies to Parliament. In fact, however,
this right to vote not only is suspended but virtually abandoned.
The next legislative election is due in 1929 under the legal five-year rule unless, as an official Fascist spokesman said, "Parliament decides to pass a measure changing the system."
Periodically the Fascist press announces that the Government party will take severe steps against those
"with old-fashioned mentality" or
"those desiring to provoke disorder" who discuss the possibility of legislative elections.

Prof. Ripley Says Stockholders Have Right to Know Their Property Is Being Used, But Not Used Up

Federal Trade Commission Has Power to Force Adequate Information From Corporations, He Declares.

WALL street attributed the sharp reaction in the last hour of trading Tuesday to an article "Stop, Look, Listen!
The Shareholder's Right to Adequate Information," published in the September issue of the Atlantic Monthly, by William Z. Ripley, professor of economics at Harvard University. A previous article by Prof. Ripley is reputed to have caused the New York Stock Exchange to change its policy of listing non-voting stocks. Following is a condensation of Prof. Ripley's latest article reproduced by permission of the Atlantic Monthly:

Concerning obscure or incomplete reports of the condition of corporations, he quotes as following from the Wall Street Journal:
"Many do more to deaden than
to arouse the stockholders' interest.
Whether by accident or design,
such reports are drawn so as to withhold from the stockholder
what he most desires to know.
When he is told that 'the increase in mortgages and ground rents payable represents a mortgage given in connection with purchase of additional property,' he says to himself that an intelligent bootblack could have guessed as much. When he reads that 'the decrease in miscellaneous accounts payable is due to withdrawals by affiliated companies to reduce their indebtedness
for construction and other purposes,' he refrains from calling the report a mess of tripe only for fear of insulting an industrious and self-respecting farmyard animal."

Dr. Ripley continues:
"Rigging the market."
Consider the plight of the uninformed shareholder, compelled for some reason or another to let go of his investment during the sealed-up period. Is this not the ultimate basis of the right of every partner
in an enterprise to such disclosure
as shall assure him against an artificial or even a rigged price? Rigged market prices, based upon inside information, are perhaps one of the most vicious features of the present situation. Relief from this menace may be had only through insistence upon complete revelation in contradistinction to that which has been so aptly described by Hastings Lyon, speaking of the prevalent practice among public utilities, as "limitless obfuscation."
The two essentials of an adequate statement are the balance sheet and the income account. The former discloses the condition of the company statically—as at a given moment. It is an instan-taneous photograph, giving a cross section, so to speak. The income account, per contra, reveals, dynamically, the course of affairs in perspective—viewed lengthwise throughout a period of time. Each is essential to a complete understanding.
Income Account Vital.
Of the two, the income account
is perhaps more significant, both immediately and prophetically. Yet
of the two, it is the income statement, as perhaps too informative,
that is the more apt to be suppressed. In England, despite the stringencies of the Companies' acts,
and still even in the staid Commonwealth of Massachusetts, all that is required by law is the filing of an annual balance sheet—less possibly the income account might give aid and comfort to the refractory competitors. But in general the world has long since passed the time when corporations
may deny to their shareholders an income account as well as a balance sheet.
"Used, Not Used Up."
At the threshold of intelligent corporate publicity stands a clear distinction between capital and income—the assurance that the property in being used is not being used up. For unless it be certain that the investment has been at all costs kept whole, there can be no security that it is not being in part redistributed under the guise of profits.
Balance sheets are prone to be inadequate or misleading in two principal respects. One is the downright omission of important items in the property account. Another is the failure to disclose the method of the valuation, whether it be of property or of stock in trade.
This brings us to the second important feature—namely, the failure to make clear the method of inventory. In such first-class procedure as of the General Motors Co., it is plain that the valuation
is based, as it should be, on cost. The Consolidated Cement Corporation frankly avows its valuation "at production cost." But one turns in vain to some otherwise statements for light as to whether the appraisal is based upon prices paid, upon the market value, upon production cost, "prudent investment" or what not.
No Par Stock.
Popular wisdom recites that all
signs fall in a dry time. With corporations things work out the other
way round. When they are wet,

dent investment" or what not.
No Par Stock.
Popular wisdom recites that all
signs fall in a dry time. With corporations things work out the other
way round. When they are wet,

with an abundance of goodwill,
commonly called watered stock,
and particularly under the present widespread adoption of so-called no-par capital issues, then it is that all signs fall with a vengeance. Almost immemorial custom, until recently, started off the corporation account from a given base, a set par value, which supposedly represented either the price at which the securities were sold or else the value of the property for which they were exchanged. But nowadays, under the prevailing practice that abolishes this par value—permitting the issuance of stock, in most states, at no particular figure whatsoever—a good old-fashioned balance-sheet practice has been knocked galley-west. The accounts, instead of starting from a benchmark solidly established—theoretically at least—start from nowhere,
and as certainly fetch up nowhere
in particular.
The holding corporation is a peculiarly troublesome and confusing
business as respects accounting.
Opportunity for Shenanigan.
Under the old-fashioned theory
of capital stock with a definite par
value, plenty enough and misfeasance—a plenty played around the matter of surplus, also; but with the advent of no-par stock, so often accompanied by practical disappearance of any precisely defined capital fund or estate, the doors were thrown wide open to all sorts of shenanigan here as well. Surplus,
but imperfectly distinguishable
from profit and loss, has always been used to make assets and liabilities exactly equilibrate down to the last cent on the balance sheet.
But now the entire capital stock,
so far as it is stripped of par value,
is bulked indistinguishably with the surplus to constitute such a total as to produce that same perfect equilibrium.
Power of Stock Exchange.
Beyond peradventure of doubt
the New York Stock Exchange is today the leading influence in the promotion of adequate corporate disclosure to the world over. The evident disposition to accept fully the responsibility of its status as the greatest organized market for ac-curities in the world merits high praise. Its list requirements, as at present are immeasurably advanced beyond those of even 10 years ago.
It seeks to discover, first, that ac-curities admitted to the trading list are sufficiently distributed so that there shall be a free and open market. This calls for a statement according to the ownership of the largest blocks of its stock, including the 10 largest shareholders. Then a constantly elaborated questionnaire, approximately more nearly year to year to the highest standards of accounting practice, endeavors to place everything of material value upon the file. The file, it should be noted, is open to public inspection; and it is further noteworthy
that the detail offered therein frequently goes beyond the call of requirement, that which is furnished to the shareholders in the published reports.
Favors Stockholders' Audit.
That which stockholders ought to bring about, either on private initiative or by induced legislation,
is the production of shareholder-
ers' audit or of general checkup committees. The practice of such independent auditing, made at the expense of the corporation but under the supervision of shareholders entirely independent of the management, is necessary under the British companies act, as also in Germany. Certified "public accountants report to a stockholders'
committee annually, and they are held to a strict obligation at law.
Whether or not, for example, a given item should be charged to capital or income account, is a matter of dictation by the management in private corporations in the United States. But in order to do thus and so in England, if it were a debatable matter, it would be at once referred for decision to such an independent executive committee of the shareholders.
Filing Honest Values.
This has to do with current valuations as carried on the balance sheets. As at present conducted,
such appraisals, whether in prospectuses or in annual reports, are necessarily made up, not by experts of independent status, but by those whose prospects and emoluments
are directly dependent upon the existing management. It is inevitable under such circumstances that these valuations should be biased
by the wish to please. Quite irrespective of status, but by those or suggestion, the impulse in-times out of ten is toward overstatement. We have had too many examples even of downright deception in this regard. Shareholders have a right, not only to an independent appraisal by engineers at the time of initial stock subscription, but also to a current checkup.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Wabash-Delmar Viaduct.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN ANTICIPATION of an early decision from the United States Supreme Court on the Wabash-Delmar Viaduct, which will decide whether the city has a right to control construction of viaducts over railroad tracks, would it not be well to consider eliminating the tracks in the park altogether?

The Wabash has its own or leased tracks along the river front to Washington avenue. Arrangements could no doubt be made to continue along the river and make connection with the Terminal tracks into Union Station. This would enable the traveling business public to leave the train at Washington avenue, the heart of the business district, or continue on to Union Station. The Wabash now uses Terminal tracks to enter Union Station and connection with river front might be just as satisfactorily arranged. The comparatively few who are inconvenienced by use of the Delmar Station could afford to forego this convenience in deference to the masses who would be inconvenienced by a Washington avenue gateway and the multitude who would rejoice at the elimination of railroad tracks and smoke in Forest Park and the residential West End of St. Louis.

The Rock Island could make connection with the Wabash over the Terminal tracks at Clayton and come in over the river front, or use the Frisco or Missouri Pacific tracks west of St. Louis.

By ending the Wabash tracks at Delmar Station, it would still enable that company to serve the industrial district in that part of the city; there are no industrial districts to serve in the park and those on the east could be served over the Terminal tracks.

Unadopted Waits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ALMOST everything has been discussed in this column but the poor unfortunate little orphans. I believe a trip to the Bethesda will give most any person a headache. The poor unfortunate little infants who lie in their beds waiting to be cared for or to be taken away. What is the matter with the childless homes? The women who have nothing to do but plan "T. A." trips abroad, bridge and lotto hunters? Why don't these people who are able to take care of these children or give some aid so more help can be had? Think this over, pleasure-seekers.

A Dangerous Intersection.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I KNOW every driver who has driven a car across the intersection at North Garrison and North Market streets will agree with me that this is one of the worst places in St. Louis today for an auto driver. North Market street has a peculiar twist to it at that point and autoists who are going north or south on Garrison avenue don't see the machines coming from the east on North Market street; in addition to that, there is the street car on North Market that turns and goes south on Garrison avenue. I stood at this corner and watched nearly all drivers grab their emergency when they reached this corner, for if they did not, someone would be killed. I understand the manufacturers in that neighborhood have reported this corner time and again as a dangerous intersection—where "Go" and "Stop" signals should be put on one of these corners, but the same has been passed up.

A NEIGHBOR.

Abuse of the Flag.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I COMMENT your discussing "Advertising and the Flag" editorially. Abuse of the flag should not be tolerated. I have counted 29 flags on one place of business, and in the residential section they are conspicuous by their absence. The larger stores have a proper regard for the flag. If it wasn't the freedom that the flag guarantees, I am afraid that some of our embryo business men would be taught the distinction between patriotism and commercialism. It's a subterfuge, and the deduction is drawn that above all things the flag insures responsibility—the very thing that is lost sight of in the improper display of our flag.

Annexation Slogans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NO DOUBT there will be a few slogans used in the annexation campaign and I would like to suggest this one for the use of those in St. Louis city who are in favor of annexation:

"Let's annex the 225,000 acres of farm land in St. Louis County and become the greatest hick town in the world."

And for those who live in the county and favor annexation why not this slogan:

"St. Louis: Let us pay your debts and enjoy the delightful breezes from your River des Peres."

A VOTER.

HITTING ON ALL CYLINDERS.

Will Coolidge run again? The question is on the lap of the gods. Probably Mr. Coolidge himself doesn't know. But one thing is significant: the White House publicity machine is functioning with rare efficiency. Its present location is in the Adirondacks instead of Washington, but that fact detracts not a whit from its quantity-production capacity. We should say that the temporary change of base from the capital is rather a hindrance. The Paul Smiths date line has something of an air about it; it lures you into reading a piece that perhaps you wouldn't read if Washington were the point of origin. We all get fed up on Washington. But Paul Smiths! The fine bucolic flavor of it is irresistible.

All that is by the way. We acquit Mr. Coolidge of any ulterior motive in the selection of a camp near Paul Smiths. The point is that pilgrims are going to the summer White House in an endless stream. Mr. Coolidge thought there would be fewer of them than he received at the more accessible Swampscott, last summer. Dispatches from Paul Smiths now tell us there are more. What was it Emerson said about the fellow in the woods who invented a new kind of mouse-trap? Anyway, the political pilgrims are making a beaten path to the Adirondacks lodge. And every time one of them comes out from a conference with the President or his Siamese twin, the Official Spokesman, he has a few well-chosen words to say on the state of the nation under Mr. Coolidge. They are always kind words, and because they are spoken on the threshold of the presidential sanctum they become news and are printed.

So the word is broadcast to the country that Mr. Coolidge is still insisting on economy (see the interview with General Lord), and that the G. O. P. is sitting pretty for the coming campaign (see the outgivings of any of the party managers), and that the farmers, even though they think the tariff maybe ought to be revised, are friendly toward the President (see the statement of Senator Capper), and that General-Admiral Andrews is "beginning to plug up the rat holes in prohibition enforcement" (see the remarks by the head of the National Grange), and that, in general, all is for the best in the best of all possible worlds.

The purring of the well-oiled publicity engine up at Paul Smiths has a familiar sound. And it doesn't spell the President's retirement.

A TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS BUREAU.

The Traffic Committee of the Safety Council has recommended the establishment of a traffic violations bureau as part of the Police Department, and President Orrick has submitted the idea to the Police Board. The advisability of such a bureau for the handling of minor traffic offenses is patent. Certainly everyone who, in answering such trivial charges as parking without lights and in restricted areas, has sat for hours in police court waiting for the case to be called, hopes that the new plan will be put into effect. The police court Judges are of the same notion. They are now required to go through the dreary routine of assessing small fines in these cases while the more important business of the court waits.

The idea of a bureau where minor offenders may pay a fine without delay and according to a definite scale is certainly no experiment. It has been put in operation in nearly every large city in the country. In Detroit, of 96,224 traffic cases from Aug. 1, 1924, when the separate traffic bureau was established, until Jan. 1, 1925, 94,360 were settled in the bureau.

There are no legislative changes necessary to organize such a bureau in St. Louis. We hope President Orrick will follow through and see the idea put into effect.

A NEW USE FOR THE ARMY.

St. Louis streets resounded yesterday to the tread of a battalion of regular infantry from Jefferson Barracks. An army band played. Overhead flitted an airplane from Scott Field, another army post.

Had the President, perhaps, or some distinguished army officer or foreign visitor come to town? Or was the army observing some notable anniversary in its history? No, the troops had turned out to advertise the opening of a new St. Louis theater. The secret was disclosed when, at the end of the procession, came motor cars with advertising placards and then the serried ranks of the theater ushers.

A pulse-quickenng spectacle? Yes, till one saw what it was all about. Then one recalled, involuntarily, a parade of seven years ago over these same streets—a parade of men just back from France. The contrast must have struck a good many of the thousands who flocked yesterday to the curb and windows to see the soldiers go by. We fancy that the thrill caused by the strains of the band and the sight of the marching men gave way, in many cases, to an altogether different sensation.

This theater is the latest triumph of the Skouras brothers. They have had a spectacular career, the brothers. It is one of the romantic cantos in the cinema epic. They practically dominate the motion picture business in St. Louis. Their success challenges admiration. But when they dedicate their next temple we hope they will not employ the United States army, or marines, or air service, or flag in exploiting the event.

OBSTACLES AND ADVANTAGES.

If there is something to be done, an organization will get at it. For example, there is the All-America Standards Council, now doing what it can to induce the United States to adopt the metric system. The council's literature stresses the obvious advantages of simplicity in calculation, conformity to the standards of most of the world, which should work a vast economic saving and stimulate our foreign trade. It suggests further that the adoption of the metric system here would lead to similar action in the British dominions, after which the United Kingdom itself might make the change.

There is no doubt that such advantages are real, but the obstacles in the way of adoption preclude the probability of early action. Most Americans who have progressed through the grade schools have studied the metric system, and forgotten it. In their ordinary affairs they have had no use for it, and, consequently, have come to think of weights and measures in terms of miles, rods, acres, yards, feet, inches, ounces, pounds and tons, not to mention quarts, pints, gallons and even gases. It would mean little to the average American if the well-dressed young man on the billboards were willing to walk a kilometer for his favorite fag, and many a woman would quit trying to reduce if she had to figure the shrinkage in grams and the like.

But the proponents of change may influence many by pointing out that within the last five years Japan, Russia, Poland, Latvia, Morocco, Turkey, Greece, Estonia, Lithuania, the Netherlands Indies, Siam, Persia and possibly Yap have confirmed the adoption of this system by legislative enactment. Let the council stress this fact, and American conceit will win many to the idea, on the grounds that Americans can do anything any other nation can, or as nearly that as the Volstead act permits. And that leads easily to another convincing argument, for the liter is five per cent more than the American quart.

MORE FROM PROF. RIPLEY.

William Z. Ripley's forthcoming article in the Atlantic Monthly on fuller and franker publicity of corporations' financial affairs is a sequel to his recent discussion of nonvoting stocks. For the evils of the wide sale to the public of this class of securities might be mitigated to some extent if the present rubber-stamp financial statements were superseded by ones containing some real information. The announcement of Ripley's article caused a violent break in the stock market, illustrating the unpleasantness of his suggestion to the sharks of Wall street.

Despite the fact that, as Ripley points out, powers are already vested in the Federal Trade Commission to require corporations to issue statements in any form which it may prescribe, Ripley's suggestion is in an academic stage. Big business is instinctively opposed to close scrutiny of its books, and the Federal Trade Commission, as now constituted, has shown the most delicate regard for the feelings of big business. Be that as it may, Ripley's article is timely and important.

In this era of broadcasting of nonvoting securities upon the uninformed and credulous public, the discussion of corporation matters by such an authority as Ripley is sure to be helpful. Prospective buyers of stock will be interested in what he says about the incomplete and misleading statements of corporations as to their financial status. They may learn to demand adequate descriptions of the properties in which they are being asked to invest. They may even insist that all corporations deal as frankly with the public as do General Motors and U. S. Steel, whose statements Mr. Ripley especially commends.

The breakup of close corporations like the National Cash Register Co. and Dodge Bros., and the refinancing and sale of their securities on the open market has become a common phenomenon. The public is now a partner in big business, but what kind of a partner? It puts up money for nonvoting stock, but has nothing to say about management or control. That still rests in the hands of small groups who, by the sale of stock, have protected themselves against large losses if the business goes up in smoke.

We hope Prof. Ripley will continue to discuss the dissemination of corporation ownership in all its phases.

THE CORN IS RIPE.

How complacently do we view the ripening corn! The first corn is being cut in Missouri, and in a little while "Old King Corn and all his men will tempt upon the fields again."

The American Indians domesticated and developed corn as we know it from a wild plant found on the highlands of Mexico. They cannot take its ripening as quietly as we can. To them it is a miracle of Nature, a veritable manna from Heaven falling. That is why, as the corn ripens, the Indians are everywhere dancing. All through the Pueblo villages of the Southwest, upon the plains, within the mountains, the Indians are dancing and singing their song of thanksgiving. Some of these festivals, like the Snake dance of the Mohi and the corn pageant at Santo Domingo, are famous. They are all the same thing, and they are held as the corn ripens wherever there are American Indians. It is not, indeed, wonderful—that great stalk, with its pendant ears, from a single grain in a short season!

So it was that while the rest of us in Missouri regarded the first ripening corn as a commonplace and never thought of it as anything more than our due, the Senecas and Cayugas held their annual corn dance last week out in Andrain Creek. They came thither from far away, as they do every year, to hold this dance upon Cowskin Creek. It is a folk custom with them—a tribal tradition. They came, they danced, they thanked God for the corn, and they departed. Meanwhile we, who never think of corn in quite that way, nor perhaps of Nature as the indulgent mother she is, looked on from our automobiles and remarked what queer people the Indians are!

But there is no helping that. The first corn shocks dot the fields, the stalks grow golden, and night has the wine-like flavor of Autumn. The corn is ripe.

Maybe if the politicians fall out the Missouri Treasury will get its dues.

EXTERMINATE THE RATS.

Calling attention to the fact that children have been badly bitten by rats recently, a reader implies that the Health Department is to blame for the existence of these pestiferous rodents. This is not literally true. There being no present danger of such plagues as are known to be spread by rats, there is no demand for a crusade by the city against these creatures. Property owners, where they become numerous, are to blame for not taking steps to keep them out of buildings, especially residences. And tenants who do nothing to save themselves from invasion by rats, by stopping up holes and using other well-known means to kill rats, are also to blame if their children are attacked.

When the new city market was built, the army of rats that swarmed in and under the old building went elsewhere. And doubtless the demolition of the numerous old, ramshackle buildings along Olive street will disperse many thousands to neighboring localities. Every female rat is capable of producing from 20 to 50 annually, so that, if left undisturbed, they may become a real menace.

They are reputed to have a certain value as scavengers. But they are so dangerous and obnoxious that it would be foolish to let them alone for this reason. Anyone so situated as to be subject to their annoyance should join in the effort to exterminate them.

COME DOWN TO EARTH.

This economy program would be a bigger hit with us if only the President would tell the budget boys to explain themselves. Abstract metaphysical problems are child's play to us; we have figured out a way to get the war debts paid; but money, being something we never had very much of, is utterly beyond us. When we see that a 250 million dollar cut is planned for the next budget, do we read the article? We do not; we hastily turn to Dempsey's latest essay on Turney. 250 million dollars! Who ever heard of such a thing? We did not, for one. If Mr. Madden will consent to tell us how many extra packs of cigarettes we can buy with our share, or how many shows we can attend, or something practical, we promise to read all about the budget. But 250 million dollars! 'Tis to laugh!

The blocks seem to be no more successful at street paving than they are as a legislative road in Congress.

Our private department of international relations believes that Europe could forgive our being the creditor nation of the world if only some people did not talk and write so unctuously of our moral leadership. We lead the world in murders; Europeans probably feel, and justly so, that we should keep our pious advice to ourselves.

We foresee the doom of the direct primary. Other states, envious of Illinois and Pennsylvania, will have none of so nouveau riche a device. And those two states are not at all comfortable since the investigation.

The Bolsheviks believe that recognition will come sooner if Americans are permitted to see Russia as it is. Our understanding is that the State Department objects to Russia, not as it is, but as it isn't.

William Wright offers $25,000 to the first one who swims from Santa Catalina Island to the mainland of California; athletes are well taken care of financially, and geniuses are sure of a free grave. Now if someone will do something for us ordinary people, everything will be lovely.

A new type of Ford is predicted. This will be pleasing news to both the customers and the patrons of vaudeville houses.

A Connecticut couple were married in the back seat of an automobile, the officiating minister sitting in front. A real test of love would have been for the groom to drive, the bride meanwhile paying attention to the ceremony.

With the Cardinals where they are, we do not look for any undue public interest in that street-car transfer test case.

At the All-Illinois Art exhibit, there will be separate galleries for "conservative" and "modern" art. We knew that if they kept it long enough, the bill poster and the flapper would secure recognition for their efforts.

Protests on grounds of moral turpitude have been made against the entry of Krishnamurti into this country. That should help the sale of any books he may write.

AINT OPERA GRAND?

Sir: 'Twas the third act of Carmen. So spirited was the performance that Don Jose had seemingly secured a technical knock-out of Carmen. When the usual flowers of appreciation were presented, I chanced to overhear the following:

First Lady: Let's go.
Second Lady: Why, is the show over?

First Lady: Yes; they always bring flowers at the end.

If Dempsey and Tunney continue their literary output, we expect to see Booth Tarkington mentioned as a possible referee.

UTOPIA.

Denatured alcohol is not a very pleasant drink.

But when a man is feeling dry, he does not stop to think;

We're warned about the dangers of the wine when it is red

Oh, somewhere in this favored land there is a peaceful dell

Where girls may wear what things they choose, and no man raises hell.

But just enforcement of that Act without some fool decree—

One of the things I read about, but never hope to see.

Hot August waxes, and in its stead we look for cooler days.

The silly season's nearly done, for which let's render praise;

The torrid wave that's summer seems to heat the human brain.

The way it causes some to talk, you'd think they were insane;

I like to trust it is the heat that causes them to rave.

The sultry days of summer make their mouths to misbehave;

A summer free from ravings of the fools of high degree—

One of the things I read about, but never hope to see.

The Cardinals are going at a pennant winning gait—

We have not had a pennant here since eighteen-eighty-eight;

The fans are ever hopeful, though, for fate plays many tricks.

Perhaps we'll have another one in nineteen-twenty-six.

The hope that springs eternal in the hopeful human breast

Sustains the fans in their wild dream; let Horneby do the rest;

A ball park in St. Louis with a pennant floating free—

One of the things I read about at last I hope to see.

THE MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to represent without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC AND SERVICE.

From the Railway Age.

WHAT is the most important change which has occurred in the United States since the war affecting all industries and business? If that question were asked from origin to destination in two days, the time taken six years ago. Regularity and dependability of freight deliveries have been phenomenally increased. Various estimates that have been made by business leaders and economists point to the conclusion that the improvement in freight service which has occurred since 1919, and especially since 1923, is now worth to the people of the country at least $1,500,000,000 annually.

Although in the spring months of this year many predicted a decline in business activity, the freight traffic of the railways in the first half of the year not only exceeded that in the first half of 1925 by 6 or 7 per cent, but even exceeded that in the first half of 1923, when an unusually large coal business was moved, as the aftermath of the coal strike of 1922. In spite of the big traffic they are handling the railways still have a large surplus of equipment. But in the week ending July 23, after loadings had exceeded 1,000 cars weekly for some weeks, the corresponding week of 1925. There is apparently no reason for believing that the surplus will not increase as much from July to October as it did last year, and last October the car surplus was reduced to 100,000 cars.

FILLING THE CHURCHES.

From the Hartford Courant.

REV. DR. JASON NOBLE PIERCE, pastor of the church which President Coolidge attends while in Washington, deplors the fact that people go to his church "just to see the President." He says that a preacher has a President of the United States and his parishioners are more to be pitied than congratulated. They are not altogether in accord with the worthy doctor. We say that the advantages of having Mr. Coolidge for a parishioner more than offset the disadvantages. * * * As to the "unpleasant" to see the President, well, it isn't an unpleasant thing. We should expect that the President would be a drawing card wherever he went. Nothing could be more certain than that there should be curiosity in the head of the Nation. The unfortunate thing is not that there is a desire to see the President of the United States at all, but that there is probably more curiosity to see others less worth while. For instance, we have no doubt that Mr. Dempsey attended Dr. Pierce's church, and that the advantages of having Mr. Coolidge for a parishioner more than offset the disadvantages. * * * As to the "unpleasant" to see the President, well, it isn't an unpleasant thing. MARIAN FRANCISCUS TO WED DR. O. P. J. FALK

Engagement of Former Veiled Prophet Queen Announced at Rye Beach, N. H.

The engagement of Miss Marian Franciscus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Franciscus of 10 Lenox place, and Dr. O. P. Joseph Falk, an internist with offices in the University Club building, was announced last night in Rye Beach, N. H., at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Franciscus, to 60 guests, most of whom are St. Louis members of the Rye Beach summer colony.

The marriage has been set for Thursday, Oct. 7, at the New Cathedral and the pair will make their home in the St. Regis apartments, 4550 Lindell boulevard.

Miss Franciscus was Veiled Prophet Queen in 1919. On her mother's side she is a great-granddaughter of John Mullanphy, philanthropist, and a great-granddaughter of Bryan Mullanphy. Her grandparents were Col. and Mrs. A. J. Lindsey. Her father, James M. Franciscus was treasurer of the City of St. Louis for eight years, is president of the Franciscus Realty Co., and financial representative in St. Louis of the Prudential Life Insurance Co.

Active in Civic Work. Miss Franciscus, during the war, established the Allies Tea Shop for the benefit of the American fund for French wounded. In 1923 she was elected president of the Open Door Junior League Shop, and in 1924 president of the Junior League. She now is president of the Junior League Club, in the Galleria Building. She was educated at the convent of the Sacred Heart, Maryville, and Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr.

Dr. Falk is the son of Dr. William Falk, 4568 Page boulevard. He was graduated from the St. Louis School of Medicine in 1918 and is a member of the staff at St. John's and Missouri Pacific hospitals.

Guests at the announcement party in Rye Beach assembled in the billiard room of Stoneleigh Manor for dancing. At 8 o'clock dinner was served in the sun parlor at a table arranged in the shape of an "M." Beneath each plate was an announcement of the engagement in rhyme.

Garlands of grape vines with feathery white flowers festooned the center of the dinner table with bunches of white flowers and in white tulle at intervals. Dancing and music continued during the dinner and Edward A. Faust showed a motion picture of St. Louisans on the beach.

Guests at the Dinner. Besides Dr. Falk, St. Louisans attending the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Max Kotany, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, Mrs. Henry Scott, Mr. and Mrs. George Scott, Miss Alice Scott, Miss Mary Francis Dickson, Miss Marceline Reyburn, Thomas Reyburn, Mrs. Edward A. Faust, Mrs. Mahlon Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Papin, Mrs. Julia Papin Gooding, Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Wells, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter, Miss Mary Carter, Mrs. John Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. David R. Francis, Miss Alice Francis, Miss Lucille Falk, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Konner, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lindsey, Dr. William T. Sauer, Mrs. Flamin Desloge, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alkin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Love, Mrs. James Drummond, Miss Josephine Cobb, Mrs. George Edwards and Mrs. George Allen.

Other guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Clement Studebaker and Clement Studebaker III of South Bend, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sharon of Kansas City, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Mercer Biggle of Philadelphia.

MRS. MARY VAN SICKLER DIES AT FRENCH RESORT

St. Louisan Who Had Been Abroad for Four Years Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch. PARIS, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Mary Louise Van Sickler of St. Louis died suddenly of heart disease yesterday at Concarneau, a watering place on the Brittany coast.

Mrs. Van Sickler, who was 68 years old, resided at the Buckingham Hotel, but had been traveling abroad for four years. Her daughter, Miss Florence Van Sickler, former general secretary of the Children's Aid Society, joined her two years ago, and they had been at the seacoast resort since Mrs. Van Sickler began to suffer heart attacks, about a month ago.

A son, William H. Van Sickler, Jr., of the Carleton Apartments, was notified by cable that Miss Van Sickler had taken the body to Paris to arrange for funeral services and burial in St. Louis. Date of arrival here is not known.

Mrs. Van Sickler, it may be recalled, was liaison officer of the 139th Infantry, and returning as an instructor in October, 1918, brought to St. Louis her first direct account of his comrades of the Thirty-fifth Division in the Argonne.

Mrs. Van Sickler, formerly Miss Mary Louise Brush, of St. Louis, was the wife of William H. Van Sickler, a dry goods merchant, who died 30 years ago. Besides the son and daughter named, she is survived by another daughter, Miss Charlotte Van Sickler of St. Louis, and by a son, Courtlandt Van Sickler, a civil engineer for the United Fruit Co., in Republica Honduras, C. A.

U. S. TOURISTS IN FRANCE VISIT SURESNES CEMETERY

Final Resting Place of 1500 Men of A. E. F. is on Slopes of Mount Valerien.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Aug. 26.—On the slopes of Mount Valerien, with all Paris lying below, there is an attraction for American tourists which vies with the cabarets of Montmartre. The fact that 20,000 persons from the United States are visiting there this year indicates its drawing power.

This is the American cemetery at Suresnes, where lie the bodies of 1500 men of the A. E. F., men of every front-line division who were killed in action or died of wounds. James Duncan, the caretaker, has compiled a short history of each division's battle record, giving the names of those buried at Suresnes by divisions, which is available to visitors. Also there is a visitors' book in which anyone visiting the cemetery may register and express his sentiments.

This book is a revelation, for it shows how strong is the drawing power of this field of honor against the gay attractions of Paris. "A fitting place for our dear ones," "A most impressive sight," "A credit to America," and "I've visited my buddies," are some of the many registered sentiments.

BIAS 'BOB' APPEARS IN PARIS

New Haircut for Women Is Longer on One Side.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1926. PARIS, Aug. 26.—What is called the "bias bob" has come to Paris. It is a fashion of having the hair shingled on one side and left long on the other in order that fair mademoiselle may have long hair or short, as she wishes, at the same time.

The fashion was brought here from New York by Vivian Martin.

the American dancers, and the indications are many that it is America that creates style nowadays and Paris which follows. But whatever its origin, the bias bob has taken Paris by storm, even though it is taking women some time to learn how to slant their heads properly so that the bias shows to best advantage. However, it is making the women happy, it is driving the barbers crazy.

A glamour irresistible as magic

They have it—those ravishing women of Spain, the golden daughters of Castilla, of Andalusia, of Majorca. It lies in the savage grace of their feline bodies, their proud gesture, above all in the matchless radiance of their luminous firm-fine skins! And do you know how they preserve this priceless gift? Castile soap! Nothing else! Six hundred years ago in Castilla they learned how to make this incomparable toilet soap, and for six hundred years the beauty and aristocracy of Spain have used it. And so—what could be finer than a finer Castile? That is to say Doña Castile! Exquisitely shaped for your hand; "hard-milled," therefore amazingly lasting; giving you a generous lather, instantly, even in lukewarm water—and rinsing instantly too. A delicious, truly feminine Castile! You can buy it anywhere. Armour, U. S. A.

Pure Olive Oil gives Doña Castile its color, fragrance and delicious blandness for delicate skins.

by independent engineers from time to time. Nor would the expense be an objection, since the cost should be chargeable to the operating expenses of the corporation.

Trade Commission's Power.

The Federal Trade Commission law of 1914 is still in full force and effect, as an amendment of the Sherman antitrust law. This statute, which is usually thought of in connection with unfair trade practices and the regulation of monopoly, contains in Section 6 a positive delegation of authority to this body which is entirely adequate to the performance of the duties so greatly needed at the present time. The Federal Trade Commission, had it chosen to exercise these powers, might since 1914 have gathered and compiled information concerning the organization, business and management of every large corporation engaged in commerce, except banks and common carriers.

What is the explanation for the neglect of this section of the existing law? It is partly, perhaps, because the commissioners have been logistically minded, preferring to institute proceedings rather than to set constructive inquiries and practices on foot. Another reason is that since the war, with its concomitant overdevelopment of Federal power, a natural reaction against so-called paternalism supervened. A third is that this body is still in its incubatory stage of development. Even with the best of intent, it must of necessity, as did the Interstate Commerce Commission for years, fight from point to point before the courts for affirmation of its powers under the law.

The chances might indeed be against the affirmation of this Federal authority, were it not that the final outcome in most of the trust and railroad litigation has heretofore in last resort been in favor of the plenary authority of the United States.

In the President's Hands.

Here, then, we have plainly indicated the most obvious, the simplest, the most effective remedy of all. It lies inert in the hollow of the executive hand. No legislation is necessary. There is nothing revolutionary about it—nothing paternalistic, to use a dreadful word, unless that means the exercise by the Great White Father of his lawful prerogative on behalf of some millions of our citizenry who are in need of help. Nor will it pauperize—another ill-omened word—if the President declares it to be the policy of the administration to carry out this law. Quite the reverse!

Nothing will more surely conduce to popular thrift than to throw all possible safeguards about the investments of the common people. Let the word go forth that the Federal Trade Commission is henceforward to address itself vigorously to the matter of adequate and intelligent corporate publicity, and, with the helpful agencies already at work, the thing is as good as done.

CONFESSION LOST, BOY ACQUITTED OF AUTO FATALITY

Son of Blind Parents Had Been Charged With Feloniously Leaving Scene of an Injury.

NOT GUILTY VERDICT
ORDERED BY COURT

Defendant, Maintaining Innocence, Says He Signed Statement on Police
Pledge of Leniency.

With his written confession of guilt mislaid by the State and not available for evidence, William Dellisle, 16-year-old automobile fatality defendant, was freed on a directed verdict of not guilty by a jury in Circuit Judge Peary's court yesterday.

Dellisle lives with his parents,
both of whom are blind, at 1315
North Eighth street. He was charged with feloniously leaving the scene of an injury to a person and was tried in Juvenile Court, a division of the Circuit Court.

He was arrested last March 8,
two days after an accident in which an automobile driven by Nick Vitale, 31-year-old baker, had been overturned in a collision at Garrison and Cass avenues. Vitale was killed in the crash, but the driver of the other car sped away.
At that time the police, who had arrested Dellisle when they noticed that the fender of his car was dented, quoted him as admitting he had struck Vitale's car and had "stepped on the gas" afterward.

Boy's Story Differs From Police.
At the trial yesterday Assistant Circuit Attorney Lemon explained that he had mislaid the written confession and put policemen on the stand to show that Dellisle had made the statement. Dellisle, in his own defense, denied he was the driver of the car which struck Vitale's machine and asserted the police had persuaded him to sign the confession by persistent questioning and promising him he would be prosecuted only on a minor charge if he admitted guilt.

In explaining his action in ordering a not-guilty verdict, Judge Peary said today that he found
the State had failed, first of all,
to prove adequately the commission of the crime.

"The defendant was charged with feloniously leaving the scene
of an injury to a person," Judge Peary said. "In my opinion, the State did not show that there actually was a felonious flight. In short, there was a failure to establish the corpus delicti, or proof of the crime."

Judge Peary also added that the police witnesses were indefinite as to the contents of the purported confession, while the defendant, on the other hand, denied that he was the driver of the car and declared
he had been induced to sign the statement by false promises.

Court Discusses Confession.
Just what influence the introduction of the missing statement
would have had on the case is problematical. Judge Peary said he did not know its contents and hence could not say what bearing
it would have had.

He pointed out, however, that the written confession could not have been admitted in evidence until the State had proved the corpus delicti—had shown that the crime charged in the indictment had been committed. Only then,
he said, could a written statement connecting the defendant with the crime, have been admitted for the jury's consideration.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Lemon
said today that he believed the confession had been misplaced in some other file in his office. He had last seen it two weeks ago. He declared the absence of the confession made no difference in the outcome of the case since he had shown by oral testimony that it was made, and had also offered wit-

Fenning Traffic Charge Dropped.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Traffic charges filed against Frederick A. Fenning, former Police Commissioner of the District of Columbia,
have been dismissed by Frank W.
Madigan, Assistant Corporation
Counsel, after a preliminary hearing. Fenning, whose activities as guardian of a large number of insane World War veterans formed
the basis of impeachment proceedings brought against him at the last session of Congress, was charged with violating parking regulations shortly after his resignation as a commissioner. He insisted he had not parked his car
where it was found and that someone must have moved it. Citing Fenning's "good reputation and high standing," and finding no witnesses to deny his contention, Madigan decided he could not take the case into court.

Safe Robber Caught in Act.
By the Associated Press.
JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Aug. 26.—
A hastily recruited force of citizens

yesterday surrounded the general store at Alexander, near here, and captured one of two men discovered robbing the store safe. His companion escaped. The men had succeeded in removing the knob
of the strong box when seen by the night watchman, who summoned

aid. The prisoner said he was Robert Jones of New York.
Back in Alimony, Must Be Own Caddy.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—Saul
H. Brown, architect and links enthusiast, is under sentence to carry his own golf clubs until his business improves. Brown was hailed into court to explain a $225 alimony delinquency. He said he had no money, but admitted hiring

a caddy. "The caddy is one expense item you can eliminate,"
the Court decided.

Half the World Away!

Over the road to the country—not many motor miles from home—you will find a new world. A world of sparkling sunlight, clean winds and far horizons. A world of beauty and adventure and dreams come true. The joy of living will get into your blood. You will glory in the strangeness of new roads, the freedom of wide, sunny fields, the mystery and magic of nights beneath the stars.

Any road around you will take you "half the world away." Discover the wonder and the rich romance of the Middle West! Here is a list of pleasure places.
See what you can add to it!

- 1—The Homestake Mine, largest gold mine in the United States at Lead, South Dakota. The average annual output is over $6,000,000.
Total depth of the Ellison shaft is 2,420 feet. Over $500 is spent for explosives every day of the year. State Highway No. 30.
- 2—Maribel Caves, Wisconsin. Curious caves in limestone formations near State Highway No. 16 between Manitowoc and Green Bay.
- 3—Clifty Falls State Park, Indiana. Rugged, thickly wooded, with many deep gorges. Contains Clifty Falls, ninety feet in height, and a series of many smaller cascades. Near Madison, State Highways No. 40, No. 26 and No. 6.
- 4—Old Fort Larned, six miles west of Larned, Kansas. On an island in the Arkansas River, a battle occurred in 1870 between the Cheyennes and Arapahoes. National Old Trails Road.
- 5—The Camel's Hump, a two-crested butte near the town of Sentinel Butte, North Dakota. State Highway No. 3.
- 6—Pilot Knob, Missouri, a shaggy peak rising 1,600 feet above sea level, named by Mississippi River pilots when river travel was in its heyday from the fact that its sharp summit was a guide post on clear days. North of Ironport, State Highway No. 21.
- 7—Piasa Bluffs, Illinois, where Father Marquette in 1673 found the famous Piasa Bird and other weird monsters painted. Piasa Bird has been restored. Wonderfully picturesque district. North of Alton, State Highway No. 3.
- 8—Pine Lake, Iowa, a pleasure resort of surpassing beauty. Artificial lake fringed with white pine and filled with rainbow trout, bass, and other game fish. Indian Mounds nearby. Near Eldora, State Highway No. 58.
- 9—Kitch-iti-kipi, the Big Spring, in the virgin forest near Maniistique, Michigan. Sixty feet deep, four hundred feet across.
The water is so clear you can watch a coin fall until it rests on the bottom, and so cold that no animal life can exist in it. About four miles off State Highway No. 12.
- 10—The Gunflint Trail, in Minnesota, a unique thirty mile road built for the use of the Forestry Services and opening up the most beautiful part of the Superior National Forest, hitherto practically inaccessible. From Grand Marais on State Highway No.
1 into the wilderness.

ROBBER PAUSES IN BANK RAID TO HELP OLD WOMAN TO CHAIR

Returns Checks and Money; $8000 Taken From Two Covington (Ok.) Depositors.

By the Associated Press.

COVINGTON, Ok., Aug. 26.—As four robbers forced depositors to the rear of the Covington State Bank here yesterday and scooped up nearly $5000 in currency, one of them noticed Mrs. Lucy Leroy, 70 years old, among the victims.

"Did we take any of your money, grandma?" he asked.

To tell that he had picked up about $70 representing checks she had cashed, the cashier was ordered to return the checks and honor them later. Mrs. Leroy then was escorted to a rocking chair in the rear of the bank and told if she kept quiet she would not be locked in the vault with the other customers. She obeyed.

The same men also robbed the American State Bank of $3000. They escaped in automobiles after locking customers and employees of both banks in the vaults.

CARDINALS IN FIRST PLACE BY FOUR POINTS, MEET PHILLIES TODAY

Jess Haines, Leading Pitcher of League, to Oppose Fletcher's Men

Meantime the Pirates Will Be Tackling the Tough Giants and the Cincinnati Reds Will Engage the Brooklyn Dodgers, Possibly Facing Dazzy Vance.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Rogers Hornsby's courageous Cardinals, who regained the National League lead by nailing the Braves, 4 to 3, in 11 innings yesterday afternoon, while the Pirates and Reds were defeated, will defend their slight margin of four points today with Jess Haines, leading pitcher of the league, facing the eighth-place Phillies in the first contest of a three-game series.

While the Cardinals are facing the cellar dwellers, the Pirates will be meeting the hard-fighting New York Giants. There is ill feeling between the Giants and Pirates and the world champions, trying to regain the lead which has slipped from their grasp twice, will find the opposition rugged and determined.

Meantime the Cincinnati Reds, who took a trouncing yesterday at the hands of the Giants, will be meeting the Brooklyn Dodgers. Dazzy Vance has shown symptoms of pitching a game recently and he is likely to beat the Reds.

Wayland Dean, formerly a Giant, probably will oppose Haines this afternoon. Harold Carlson, the ace of the Philadelphia staff, pitched yesterday's game against the Cubs, so he will not be able to work against the Cardinals during the three-game series, which is a fortunate break.

Margin Is Narrow. The Cardinals must win this afternoon to remain in first place, if the Pirates win, and also to prevent an advance of the Reds, who could tie the Cardinals by winning while Hornsby's men are losing.

The standing of the three contenders with the percentage that would result from a victory or a defeat today, follows:

Club. W. L. Pct. Win. Loss. Car. Finals. 71 51 .582 .585 .577 Pittsburgh. 67 49 .578 .581 .573 Cincinnati. 52 57 .474 .577 .569

After the Cards' series with the Phillies, the Pirates will come to St. Louis for the real test of the Cardinal pennant power. Five games will be played, including a double-header Sunday, and the five games and three scheduled in Pittsburgh early in September will go a long way toward deciding which National League city will be represented in the world series.

The Cardinals have an advantage in that their morale is excellent. The team has seen its power developing and has seen the lead of the Reds and then the Cardinals brushed away. The Cardinal pitching has been good, the team has shown that it has the punch and

Alexander Stops Troublesome Braves And Cardinals Win in Eleventh Inning

Grover Cleveland Alexander paid another dividend yesterday on the paltry $4000 that the Cardinals gave the Cubs for his release. The veteran right-hander relieved Flint Rhem in the ninth inning with Braves on second and third base, one out and the Cards one run ahead and while a sacrifice fly tied the score, that was the end of the party for the Braves.

Alex pitched to three batters in that ninth inning. He walked Jack Smith, filling the bases. Gautreaux tried to Holm, Mann scoring, and then Alex struck out Welsh. In the tenth three Braves batted and in the eleventh four. Morgridge hit a single with two down only to be forced at second by Jack Smith.

Tommy Thewissen started the winning rally in the eleventh, lining a double to left. Alexander was expected to hunt. But instead of doing the expected, he swung and nipped a single to right. Thewissen, Holm, filling the bases. In the hope of turning a double play at the plate, but Hefey, batting for Southworth, popped a single to left and Thewissen scored the winning run.

It was a good team playing an inferior team and the inferior team put up a great fight, but inferiority finally decided the game.

Brown was playing near the left field fence when Hefey popped his single to left. Brown's only chance to prevent a Cardinal score was to play in close. He could not have

MORSE AND LORENZ IN DISTRICT JUNIOR GOLF SEMIFINALS

TEMPLE AND ORTHWEIN ALSO WIN MATCHES

Sunset Played Oppose Two From Forest Park in Semifinals This Afternoon—Final Tomorrow.

SUNSET HILL COUNTRY CLUB, Aug. 26.—

Clarke Morse of Forest Park, shooting a 75 over the difficult Sunset course, won his way into the semifinals of the District Junior Golf championship this morning, eliminating Lawrence Schutte, also of Forest Park.

The score was 3 up and 2 to play. Another 75 was turned in by Robert Orthwein of Sunset and this excellent score made the shooter victor over Bobby Held, 1 up in 18 holes. Held, a brother of Eddie Held, was only one stroke over Orthwein and made a real battle of the match.

Going to No. 17 one down, Held holed out his approach shot giving him a birdie four and squaring the match. But on the eighteenth he dubbed his drive into a reservoir and lost.

Herbert Lorenz of Sunset, defending champion, eliminated Chester O'Brien of Forest Park, 4 and 3, and will meet Orthwein this afternoon in one of the semifinal matches.

It took C. E. Temple Jr. of Sunset, 19 holes to down John Griffin of Forest Park, 1 up. Griffin drove out of bounds on the nineteenth, costing him the match.

Temple will oppose Morse this afternoon, both semifinal matches thus bringing a Sunset player against a Forest Park representative.

Tomorrow the 36-hole final will be played.

CUBS BUY SHORTSTOP GIVING 3 PLAYERS AND "A WHALE OF MONEY"

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Elwood English, 20-year-old shortstop of the Toledo club and one of the best youngsters in the American Association, today was purchased by the Chicago Nationals for three players to be named by Jan. 1 and a "whale of a lot of money," according to President Veeck.

According to unofficial sources, it was said English cost the Cubs $50,000.

English is 5 feet 11 inches tall, exceptionally fast, and a fairly good hitter. Playing in 124 games with Toledo, he has scored 54 times and is hitting about .310.

Stecher and Pesek Draw.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 26.—Joe Stecher, claimant to the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, and John Pesek, Nebraska "Tiger," grappled two hours to a draw here last night.

"Old Pete" Alexander Now Being Named by Contestants In All-America Contest

Former Cub Hurler Has Performed Impressively in the Pinches and Done Much to Steady Youthful Cardinal Club; Made All-Star Team in 1923.

Rules Governing Babe Ruth All-America Team Contest

Any reader who mails to the Post-Dispatch between Aug. 1 and Aug. 31 a team of 10 players (except Ruth himself) in the National and American Leagues for the season of 1926, with a letter of not more than 200 words, explaining the selection of the team, is eligible to compete.

The reader whose team—two pitchers and eight men in the other positions—is the same or nearest Ruth's selection and is accompanied by the best letter giving reasons for the choice, will be declared the winner.

The contest winner must not only select the same 10 players as Ruth, but must assign them to the same 10 positions on the team.

Players may be placed in positions other than their regular places provided they have played in those places in at least one regular league game in 1926.

Players must be selected on the basis of their playing in 1926, NOT on records made in previous seasons.

In case no team is exact, the same as that selected by Babe Ruth, the one nearest will be named on the merit of his accompanying explanation.

The winning contestant will receive $100 in cash and the runner-up and third best selections and letters $50 apiece. In addition, Babe Ruth himself offers an autographed bat to the winner of the first prize. The bat will also be inscribed with the winner's name.

"Old Pete" is beginning to break into the selections in the Post-Dispatch's Babe Ruth All-America contest for the first time. This morning's mail brought the first batch of letters naming Grover Cleveland Alexander on the pitching staff.

Perhaps the contestant who submitted his name was present during the tense Boston series when the veteran pitcher, who was named by Babe Ruth in 1923, was thrown into the breach at critical periods in all three games and came through.

Has Been Big Asset.

Alexander has meant a lot to the Cardinals in their dash for the pennant. He has not only coached the younger members of the staff, but has steadied the youthful team in the tight places. His approach to the mound with men on the bases and one out in the ninth inning always relieves the tension for both spectators and players.

Gilt-edged pitching and coolness under fire. It is an old story to him. It is the sweetest story ever told to a city of maniacs to whom every enemy run is a stab in the vitals.

Lee Ebleu lives in Cairo, Ill., but apparently has the bug worse than the average St. Louisan. Note the men he selects for an All-America team. It looks like a Cardinal landslide:

Martin Easily Beats McCarthy At B. M. A. Show

Lang Has Slight Edge Over Palmer in Hard-Fought Battle.

Jack McCarthy, somewhat aged middleweight fighter, accomplished one thing in his six-round mill with Lester Martin, the main attraction in the program presented by the Business Men's Athletic Club at the Battery Arena last night. He surprised everyone present by lasting the six rounds. At least the old man has endurance.

He had little else. Martin mauled him in one corner and then would move him over in the next for more punishment, despite McCarthy's ten-pound weight advantage.

For the most part McCarthy put his arms over his head and retired to his cyclone cellar when Martin

RESULTS

Lester Martin (148 pounds) easily outpointed Jack McCarthy (158 pounds) in six rounds.

Paul Lang (121 pounds) outpointed Ray Palmer (121 pounds) in six rounds.

Lew Terry (128 pounds) outpointed Bud Schlereth (128 pounds) in six rounds.

Harry Ethington (174 pounds) got a technical knockout over Rocky Adams (180 pounds) in the second round.

Victor Wendle (140 pounds) got a technical knockout over Young Firpo (137 pounds) in the fourth round.

Al McCoy (140 pounds) outpointed Jimmy McCarthy (140 pounds). The fight was stopped in the fifth round by Referee Harry S. Sharpe after McCarthy had taken terrific punishment.

McCarthy enjoyed great popularity with the wits. "If you have any respect for a lady you won't hurt the old gentleman," yelled one ringside spectator. McCarthy did act as if he were better prepared for a good quiet game of lotto rather than a battle of fists.

Too One-Sided.

As for the side attractions, the main fault of last night's show was that the battles were too one-sided and the moderate-sized crowd never once got excited enough to leave their seats.

One match, however, was evenly fought. Paul Lang and Ray Palmer, who both tipped the scales at 128 pounds, resumed their ring feud and the former had slightly the better of it. This was a free hitting affair with Lang registering the most base hits.

Lew Terry and Bud Schlereth had also met before. Terry took the battle on points, Schlereth being very groggy at the end and apparently just did last till the final gong. Bud tried using the ropes as a prop at different stages of the fight and took a lot of punishment from Terry as a consequence.

Rocky Adams of Iowa was hailed by the announcer as "the bone-crusher." However, before he realized what was under way, Harry Ethington of Mattoon, Ill., sailed in with everything he had, so that Adams went to the floor for three round trips in the first round. There were no round trips in the second round. Adams went down in a sea of blood shortly after the fight started and Ethington won a technical knockout.

Young Firpo, matched with Victor Wendle, exhibited a remarkable pair of shoulders and skill as a comedian. His windmill-like attack gave Wendle the openings he wanted. Young Firpo lasted until the fourth round. His finish was in sight from the start.

Al McCoy completely outboxed Jimmy McCarthy in the curtain raiser, though the latter showed a lot of gameness. The fight was stopped in the fifth.

To Challenge Champion.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26.—Alexander Alechine, Russian chess master, plans to challenge Jose R. Capablanca, Cuban holder of the world's chess championship, to a championship match to be held in Buenos Aires early next year. He intends to cable his challenge to Capablanca immediately.

Miss Hull Beats Marian Turpe

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Miss Hull of Kendallville, Ind., eliminated Marion Turpe, the New Orleans sensation from the women's Western golf championship tournament today at Olympia Field by winning her third round match 1 up.

Neither golfer displayed the remarkable game which carried them through the qualifying and first two rounds. They played with a stiff wind at their backs most of the time, but when they turned to get the breeze across the line of fire, they were in difficulties.

Miss Hull's score was 48-44-46 and the Southern champion took one more with 48-48-46.

Miss Dorothy Page of Madison, Wis., defeated Miss Elsie Hildner, Grand Rapids, Mich., 5 and 4.

Mrs. Perry Fink, Detroit, won from Mrs. Perry Fink, Detroit, on a default after she had holes when the Illinois woman was forced to give up because of illness.

Over two billion smoked a month! —what better proof could you ask?

Doesn't such popularity speak for itself?

OVER two billion Chesterfields smoked every month. Some cigarettes! But likewise—some cigarette!

Natural tobacco taste—nothing can take its place, and smokers are finding it out. The character and goodness of fine tobaccos brought out to the full—that's what smokers want. And they're finding it in Chesterfield—for natural tobacco taste and Chesterfield are one and the same thing!

AMERICAN BOY GOLFER LOSTS IN FIFTH ROUND

By the Associated Press.

COOMBE HILL, SURREY, England, Aug. 26.—Charles Sweeney of the Canterbury School, New Milford, Conn., today was eliminated in the fifth round of the British boys' amateur golf championship by E. A. McMurrie of Levenhastie, Scotland, 2 and 1.

Young Sweeney, who, with his brother Robert, made up a little contingent of American invaders in the tournament, had won his way into the last eight boys to fight it out for the trophy, defeating several young British opponents of considerable ability.

Robert was eliminated in the first round.

WAYMAN ALLEN LOSTS CROCKER CUP MATCH

By the Associated Press.

RYE BEACH, N. H., Aug. 26.—Wayman Allen of St. Louis was defeated today by Harry E. Bailey of Brookline, Mass., in the finals of the annual men's championship golf tournament for the Crocker Cup at the Aben Aquil Golf Club.

Allen, who won the tournament last year, was playing poor golf at first and was four down at the end of the nine holes. In the last nine holes he made a rally and evened the match on the fourteenth hole. From then until the eighteenth hole the match saw-sawed, but Allen, missing a putt by inches on the last hole, decided the match in favor of Bailey.

SUSPENDED ATHLETE BEATS WORLD RECORD

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Georges Baraton, the French middle distance champion, yesterday ran the 1500 meters at the Colombes Stadium in 5m 50.2-ss. This is 2.1-2 seconds better than the world's record hung up by Nurmi at Helsinki in 1924—5m 52.4-ss.

It is not likely that this record will be ratified, because no official of the French Federation was present, but three reliable clockers timed the French champion. In addition, Baraton is under suspension by the French Athletic Federation.

"CURIOSITY, YOUR HONOR," said a narcotic victim the other day when asked by Judge Simmons in Detroit to name the leading cause of drug addiction. The man is a university graduate. On being sentenced to six months in the House of Correction, he begged the judge to send him instead to the Leavenworth Penitentiary for year and a day. "I've been in the county jail for almost a month awaiting trial," he said, "and during that time I've gained twenty-five pounds and I haven't felt as fit and fine in the past twelve years. The longer sentence in Leavenworth will give me a chance to cure myself entirely of the habit."

His request was granted, the Detroit Free Press tells us, and an incident narrated by Arthur M. Smith in the Detroit News gives some indication of the moral heroism which the request implied: "Among the sixty-five drug addicts rounded up recently was a man who, fifteen years ago, was a valuable member of the staff of a Western newspaper."

"He was asked what his symptoms were when he could not get the 'dope' to keep him up. 'O, my God!' he replied, 'they are indescribable. Could you imagine having extreme neuritis in every nerve of your body? That is only part of it.'"

Other consequences of indulging curiosity regarding drugs are banishment from home and a dependence upon thieves for a livelihood. "Lost to old associates and bound as with chains to the underworld where dope-peddling thrives, the drug addict not only takes easily to crime, he is driven to it to live without torture. He is too emaciated and nervously disorganized to take any job and hold it."

This excerpt from a striking article in The Literary Digest this week, Aug. 28th number, will give the reader some idea of the horrors of the drug addict, and a reading of the entire article should arouse the public to the necessity of active measures to suppress the drug traffic.

In the panel to the left are listed other illuminating news-features.

"SHOW PLACE OF THE WORLD"

Grand Opening TODAY

Please Come Early

The Greatest Event in St. Louis Since the World's Fair

Today. The day of days. The day when all St. Louis will crowd downtown to Seventh and Locust Streets. Eager to join the festivities. Eager to share the thrill of launching this great civic institution.

Just like little Alice, St. Louis wants to see Wonderland. Thru the magic door that separates the bustling city from wonderland—that's where St. Louis is crowding today. To see fine pictures and public stage specialties. To enjoy Skouras entertainment and service.

To-morrow the city will ring with the Ambassador's praises. The architectural grandeur. The stupendous program. You'll hear it at every corner. Be among the first to see it. Get there early. No seats reserved. First come, first served. All seats the same price, C'mon, St. Louis!

Place... DOWNTOWN—7th & Locust Sts.

Time... 11 A.M. to 11 P.M. Doors Open at 10:30 A.M.

LIEUT. BETTIS, HURT IN PLANE CRASH, BETTER

Removed to Walter Reed Hospital at Washington in Flying Ambulance.

By the Associated Press.

BELEFONTE, Pa., Aug. 26.—Lieut. Cyrus K. Bettis, Pulitzer trophy winner in 1925, who was injured when his plane crashed in a dense fog in the Seven Sisters Mountains and was lost for more than 43 hours, passed a comfortable night, his physicians said.

Lieut. Bettis was taken today to Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, in an ambulance airplane. His left leg is broken and his jaw fractured.

Four mechanics from the air service depot at Middletown, Pa., were engaged today in salvaging the wrecked airplane.

Bettis was on his way from Philadelphia to Selfridge Field, Mich., Monday afternoon, when he ran into a thick fog. The pilots of two other planes flying with him, Lieut. John J. Williams and Luther S. Smith, got through the fog safely and landed in Michigan. Bettis' plane struck the side of a mountain.

Bettis was unconscious for an hour and a half after he fell, he guessed. He had no food and quenched his thirst with what little rain he could catch in the palms of his hands. He stayed with his wrecked machine all Monday night and did not leave it until Tuesday afternoon, when he concluded that he must find his way out himself. He crawled on hands and knees until he came to a little clearing, when he stood on his good leg and hopped until he tired. Then he crawled again, finally reaching the road where he was found. About 6 o'clock that night he heard the whirr of airplanes and later saw two of them flying overhead. He knew they were searching for him, but he was unable to attract their attention.

He crawled on until he reached a roadway where he was found at 8 a. m. yesterday by workmen who carried him to Bellefonte.

Mrs. Still, Pioneer, Dies at Steele.

STEELE, Mo., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Elvira Still, pioneer Missourian, died at her home here yesterday.

She had lived in her present home for 56 years, and her body will be interred in a garden near the house, in accordance with her wishes.

100 Overstuffed Suites Now at Bargain Prices

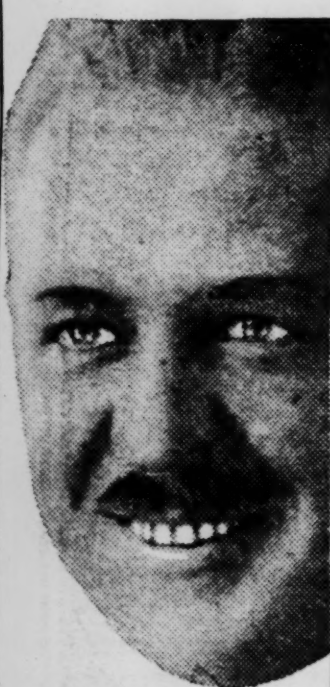

FOR Friday—the fifth day of this sale—we feature a mammoth sale of 100 fine overstuffed Suites which are offered at new low prices for quick disposal. All new frames and covering are shown in both two and three piece Suites. Some with large size davenport ports that contain full-size beds.

Those who have put off the furnishing of their living room should make it a point to choose one of these Suites.

You Can Start Him

No one knows better of his faithfulness in the performance of necessary daily customs than does his wife. Start him on this new practice.

DEVELOPMENTS in the science of medicine have brought about a daily custom—on of refinement and of protected health.

Disease prevention, as all physicians know, is of first importance. The nose is the open gateway to most infectious diseases. The nose must be kept clean—the nasal passages germ-free and healthy.

Daily nasal cleanliness is as important as oral hygiene. Cleansing the teeth today requires no sermonizing. Now prevent dangerous infectious diseases by daily nasal cleanliness.

A simple, minor custom will offer you daily nasal cleanliness. Just apply a few drops of ARZEN in the nostrils each day.

With clear nasal passages one breathes better. The whole body benefits. Further there is a nice sense of personal hygiene—of physical fitness—of fastidious freshness. Apply ARZEN morning and night. Let this practice follow the use of your toothbrush.

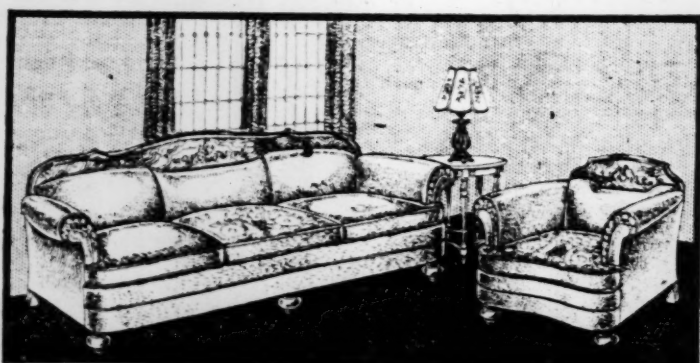

SPECIFIC USES

Arzen used daily prevents colds. Stops them if started. Excellent for Hay Fever Relief. An aid in sinus trouble. Daily nasal cleanliness prevents infectious disease. Keep the nose as clean as the face.

CHAPTER XI.

"AND do you like the pictures?" They were sitting close together on the divan. Yvonne's head against Jock's arm. He looked down at her, his eyes full of light, her face, those long, gray, lily-lipped eyes. . . . He thought, "Pictures. They're nothing. It's like trying to photograph a sunset. You get the lines, but not the glory. It's like me when I try to express her in words. Colorless and dead. A painter or a poet could do her justice, but not a camera man nor a mute fool like me."

He said, "They're beautiful phantoms of you."

"Which do you like best?" Jock took one from the pile. "This."

Yvonne sighed, glancing at it. "Of course," she said, as though she spoke to no hearer. "The one that looks the youngest."

"Birdseed! smothered Jock. 'You talk as though you were old. And don't you think I am?'"

"I think you're about my age."

"And how old are you, Jock Hamill?"

"Twenty-two."

She smiled dreamily. "How nice to be twenty-two!"

Jock thought, "She may be a year or two older. Perhaps 24. She can't be any more than that."

He kissed her fiercely, as though through her lips he would impress her mind with the total irrelevance of comparative ages.

They talked. Or rather, Yvonne talked. Jock sat silent, looking into her eyes. You could write a book from the things in Yvonne's eyes. "Remember love," he speculated. "Lost twilight. Music, and wisdom, and sun and shadow, and pain."

He laid them flat against his, and folded them into fists and chuckled over their littleness, and buried his nose in their perfumed palms. . . . She had classic hands. Narrow, artistic fingers, and a thumb that could be pulled backward until it formed a pinkish-white arch. . . . He stroked her hair. Queer, about her hair. Sometimes it was bobbed and at other times you were sure it wasn't. She fixed it in so many ways, all of them enchantingly becoming.

His mind was too full of her to concentrate on the impersonal things she was saying. But presently he heard, "because I'm going away tomorrow."

He sat up with a start. "You're what?"

"I'm going away tomorrow."

"You're not?"

"Yes, I am. I'm going to California."

"For how long?" he groaned.

"Oh, I don't know exactly. Several months, I suppose."

Several months! Several months! Jock felt joy ride out of him on those two words like a fairy princess on horseback, leaving only an ache and an emptiness. Several months. . . .

"And do you care so much, Jock Hamill?"

Yvonne was grave and troubled now, looking at him. She put her hands against his face and brought it down to hers. Bitter-sweet, that kiss, and long, long, . . . because there would not be many more. . . .

"Yvonne, you can't go!"

"I must, my dear."

"But why? Why?"

"I have to, that's all."

"You mean you want to?" Jock accused angrily. "You're going because you want to go, and I—"

"He broke off, unable to express himself. He drew away, dug his chin into the palm of one hand, and glared ahead of him. He would have been horrified to know how like a sulky little boy he looked."

"But of course," he added. "It doesn't make any difference to you how I feel."

"It makes a tremendous difference, Jock Hamill."

He glanced at her sharply. "You mean you won't go after all?"

"I mean that I rather wanted to go, before," said Yvonne, and now I don't want to go, and I'm sorry I have to, since it hurts you."

"Then don't! Why do you have to? Don't go! Stay here with me—marry me!" He was holding her close again, crushing her.

"Yvonne, why won't you marry me? Don't you care a little about me?" Suddenly he reminded himself of Molly. Those words were Molly's, once. That hurt beseeching tone was Molly's. And what a fool Molly had seemed.

His arms dropped away and he put his head in his hands. "God, this world!" he muttered. "No justice. Men love women who don't love them, and women in turn by whom they don't love."

"Dear," said Yvonne. "I do love you. Quite a great deal. I told you that the last time you were here, and it's true. But I also told you I can't marry you, and that's true, too. There are reasons why I can't—many excellent reasons—but not caring enough about you isn't one of them."

"Well, what is one of them? You're not married already. You say you don't love anyone else any better. What is it? This damn vagueness is driving me crazy. Yvonne! Don't you think it's about time you told me a little about yourself?"

For the barest minute Yvonne seemed to waver, and Jock thought, "Now, I'm going to know!" But when she spoke it was to say, "After I've told you everything. But not today. I want to leave you thinking of me—sweetly."

"Nothing you could tell me would ever change the way I think of you, Yvonne. You know that."

"I—hope that." She made a noticeable distinction.

There was a silence, and then she rose and went out of the room. Jock remained, brooding. . . . Several months! He had a ghastly sound, incessant and dream, like a prison sentence. Several months without Yvonne. Without beauty, without color, without flame. A stretching nothingness. An icon of misery, to be got through heaven alone knew how. But she cared a little, and that was something. And when she returned she would tell him.

Presently he became restless. His last afternoon with her, and again he was waiting here alone, squandering all too many priceless minutes. "Yvonne!" he shouted.

"Yes?"

"Come back here!"

"I will, in a second. I'm putting a hat and coat on."

"Why, what for?"

"Because we're going to take a walk in Central Park."

And they did. Somehow people always did what Yvonne wanted. Until evening dropped down on New York and the buildings were checkerboards of light and darkness they walked, and talked lightly (because Yvonne wanted it to be lightly) and grew pink and chill, and sparkling-eyed. . . .

Yvonne.

"Not as glorious as being back at your apartment."

Her laugh was a chord from a gay sweet song. "Don't you like Central Park?"

"I don't like any public place, with you, on our last—"

She intentionally misunderstood him. "Now there's a pretty compliment!" she mocked. "Of course there are men who don't care to be seen about with me, but I didn't think the list included you!"

Sheer nonsense, of course. But Jock wished she would not say such things.

They walked slowly, sauntering. A couple to make tired faces lift and soften as they passed, the boy so young, so good to look at, the girl perhaps not quite as young, but exotic, picturesque, in a chin-chilla coat and a hat that cast flattering shadows. . . . Jock held Yvonne's arm tucked close to him, and his eyes never left her. They caressed her, did her homage.

"You mustn't look like that, Jock Hamill."

"Like what?"

"As though you were in love with me."

"Good Lord, I am—"

"Yes, but why let everybody know?"

They were nearing a bench on which reposed the shapely figure of an old ragged man. Jock halted. "Sir," he said politely, "allow me to announce that I'm in love with this woman, and please tell as many people as you can find to listen."

"They went on. 'Silly boy!' smiled Yvonne tenderly."

Jock looked sober. "Did you get his expression?" he asked. "Surprised, and after that, wistful? It made him feel old and forlorn—the contrast—I'm sorry I did it."

They parted took place at five-thirty, abruptly. "Do you see that taxicab, Jock Hamill?"

"I do."

"Put me into it, and send me home."

Jock stopped dead in his tracks. "Send you home? I'll do nothing of the sort. Why, I thought—aren't you going to have dinner with me? Yvonne! Your last night!"

"I'd rather you'd remember me in Central Park," said Yvonne, "than in an atmosphere of clattering china and planked steaks and—flappers." And to this decision she clung obstinately, though Jock tried almost with desperation to dissuade her. He felt cheated. She had tricked him into talking of consequential things when he thought he had hours left in which to talk, and he had said nothing of what filled his mind. Also he felt tortured, as though something inside him was dying a little. . . .

"Don't say good-bye," Yvonne commanded from the taxi. "I abominate that word. Just say something very collegiate and foolish—'See you in church,' or something like that."

But Jock, stricken, could not even say something like that.

The door slammed.

Portrait of a lady, with a big black hat, with curving red hair, with lips that smiled and eyes that strangely did not smile. . . .

Then she was gone.

The next day, in the automobile section of a New York Sunday paper, Jock chanced upon a single column out of a man whose features were dimly familiar. The caption conveyed nothing to him. "Parke Demorest, president and general manager of the Demorest Motors Corporation." He looked hard at the picture again, scowling in concentration. Then it came to him. This was the man with the cold blue eyes who had entered the restaurant the first time he and Yvonne lunched together—the man whom Yvonne had joined, and with whom she had talked so long. Jock could almost hear her voice again, saying, "You have been coining epigrams, Parke," and then something about jealousy. . . . So that was who the fellow was. Parke Demorest of Demorest Motors. Rich as Croesus. . . .

He read the paragraph below the picture, an announcement of the purchase of some other, more obscure make of motor car by Parke Demorest. And finally, at the bottom, this:

"Mr. Demorest is leaving today for a sojourn in California."

The first two weeks of December were busy, for which Jock was thankful, because they left him little time for thinking and remembering. He wished that he need not think at all; that he might make his mind a blank until such day as Yvonne should return from California and tell him the truth. Plenty of time then to cogitate matters. No use to try to do it now, when all one's suspicions were based on a single line of newspaper type that might possibly prove to be only coincidence, after all.

Numerous activities contrived to keep him occupied. For one thing, he suddenly started wild-eyed into the face of the fact that he had done almost no studying during the term. Midyear exams loomed, a distinct and not far-distant menace.

He turned to his subjects and began to absorb them with an avidity that incited Bones to lofty scorn. He took to listening in classes where he had previously only dreamed, and the fly-leaves of his textbooks knew his idly-scrawling pencil no longer.

For another thing, there was "practice." This meant that day after day Jock with his banjo and numerous comrades with instruments of divers sorts sat in informal attitudes around a great barren platform, while before them a frenzied youth in spectacles beat time, and tore his hair, and howled. "Come on, you sazes! What's the matter with the second violin! Louder, louder! Softer! Slower! Hey, get into the spirit of this thing, will you, fellows? Quit syn-copating, over there—this is one tune that's got to be played as is. Oh, rotten! Lousy. We'll get blessed off the stage—" "We" was the Un-Musical Club, a combination of vocalists and instrumentalists, and the occasion of the practice was a concert to be given before the elite of Boston on the first night of the Christmas vacation.

Then additionally, there was Blah-Blah. This was a slender booklet of undergraduate wit, which appeared monthly under an invariably pursed-lipped female cover. Jock belonged to its editorial staff. Among other duties, he was expected to contribute assorted items to its pages every month, and he had long since established a reputation as a source of bubbling light verse, short artful sketches, and "Gin" jokes.

There was a chuckle in everything of his that appeared in the magazine. He left the sentimental poetry and the really artistic bits of writing to contributors who felt them less deeply than he, and hence could more readily laugh them off. About the campus he was deemed a budding humorist, and no one knew nor guessed the nature of the pages and pages of material he wrote and did not publish, but hid away.

During early December he conceived and executed "The Confessions of a Dormitory Cookroach."

He did three jingles, "Ode to a Wastebasket," "Peter the Peeper," and "Girls Who Get None of My Time," and one playlet entitled "The Wages of Gin Is Breath."

These went direct to Blah-Blah. He also composed during this period, 27 poems that did not go to Blah-Blah. Of each of these, Yvonne was the leitmotif.

He wrote her letters also, but futilely for she knew not where to send them. His first one, mailed to her at the Park avenue apartment, had been returned marked "Present address unknown."

The only communication he had had from her was a package containing the photograph he had said he liked best. No note accompanied it, but across the back Yvonne had written lines culled from one of the volumes of poetry Jock had given her.

"And I am made aware of many a week."

I shall consume, remembering in what way.

Your dark hair grows about your brow and cheek.

And what divine absurdities you say.

He purchased a costly frame and put the photograph in it. But after a day or two he discarded the frame, so that he could read the writing on the back again and again. That was Yvonne, telling him she would not forget him; that was solace. Whenever he stared into her pictured face, that other face from the newspaper clipping seemed to dance like a demon before him, and laugh at him through Yvonne's eyes.

He found himself looking more often at the quotation than at the photograph.

He sought companionship, especially in the evenings. He joined his fraternity brothers in long talks around the living room fire, where they lounged with that inferior droop of the spinal column peculiar to youth, and smoked pipes, and conversed about women. Women were the perennial topic at the university. All other matters were discussed on schedule—football in the autumn, baseball in the spring—but women held sway at all seasons. . . . One night, after an exhaustive session, Jock sat up late compiling for his own edification a list of "Contents of an Average Undergraduate's Mind." It ran somewhat as follows: "Four brunettes. Nineteen blondes. Two hundred and twenty telephone numbers. Addresses of seven bootleggers. Probable outcome of Dempsey's next fight. Probable outcome of next world's series. Usual assortment of traveling salesmen, about Pat and Mike, about honeymooners. Assorted rhymes, most of them beginning, 'Here's to the girl who—' Babe Ruth's batting average. Automobiles. Petting. Marilyn Miller. The backfield from Notre Dame. Barney Google."

When he had completed this, he tore it up without reading it over, calling himself a supercilious ass and feeling ashamed of his disloyalty.

He went to movies and vaudeville shows with others of his ilk and sat stuffing popcorn and cheering sonorously at all unnecessary junctures. At Commons, the dining hall for undergraduates, he participated in an indignant riot staged principally by boys who, like himself, did not eat there, and hurled biscuits and butter in every direction. Adopting the two favorite fads of the year, he dispensed with shirts and his hats at the top of the crow's, and his hair might stick up through a waving ebony plume. He went twice to New York to see revues, and once, in company with Bill Olmstead and "Cracker" Ferguson, he took three choruses girls to supper. He became a little intoxicated three times, and very intoxicated twice.

In such ways he sought to shut out of his mind Parke Demorest of Demorest Motors.

(To Be Continued.)

Green Salad.

Take the best of a small head of garden lettuce and wash in cold water, dry and crisp on the ice.

Take a handful of fresh crisp watercress, wash and trim it. Take the heart of a bunch of chives, wash, dry and crisp it on ice. Take enough chives to make two tablespoonsful after washing and cutting up. Wipe the inside of the salad bowl with a cut bud of garlic, arrange the lettuce after dipping each leaf in heavy French dressing. Put in the cress and chives, sprinkle with the dressing then with the chives. Serve at once.

HELPS : TIMELY DISCUSSIONS

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1926.

Being Shown for Fall Wear

An attractive ensemble with maline hat to match. The ensemble is of apricot Georgette crepe, trimmed with silver applied braid designs—the applique embroidered in colors. The bodice is made without collar and the skirt accordion pleated. The jacket is very loose-fitting with bell-shaped sleeves.

you that he wouldn't trust Mrs. Stickleback one single little minute. He would tell you that she would like nothing better than to get a chance to eat those eggs; and that is a fact. So after Mrs. Stickleback has laid the eggs, Pa Stickleback is through with her. He doesn't want her hanging around, and he doesn't let her hang around.

Now I have told you that there are two doorways to that little nest. Pa Stickleback kept guard in front of one entrance, and with his fins he kept a little current of water going right through that little nest, in one entrance and out the other. That was to keep the water clean and pure. If an egg got washed out he would hasten to push it back in. Pa Stickleback was on the job every second. The wonder was that he got enough to eat. But he did. At the same time he managed to keep those eggs from all harm. Reddy never went over there, no matter what the hour of the day, that Pa Stickleback wasn't right there, looking as if he had a chip on his shoulder every minute. You know, that is just a way of saying that he looked as if he were all ready to fight every minute. He was, too! And proud! Why, Pa Stickleback was as proud of that nestful of eggs as anybody could be. He might be anxious for fear some harm would come to them, and worried for fear they wouldn't hatch, and tired of all the time keeping on watch, but he certainly was proud. He was so proud that you only had to look at him to know it.

Meringue Shell Filling.

Any good baker or confectioner will make a meringue shell, 12 inches in diameter and four inches deep for you. Smear the inside with soft jelly and line with lady fingers. Fill the bottom of the shell half full of fresh sugared fruit, peach, pineapple or ripe berries. Preserved fruit drained from the syrup may be used, if the fresh fruit is not available, or a smooth dry and well seasoned applesauce may be used. Cover the top with ice cream rounded out with a table spoon. Pour over a little thick sauce or crushed fruit, and top with whipped cream. Decorate with candied cherries and stripes of angelica.

Firm Muscles for Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI

MANY a woman has successfully hoodwinked the public about her real age by being wise enough to give some daily attention to the muscles under her chin. For it is here that the first signs of age make themselves apparent and once these muscles have sagged to any extent it is almost impossible to remedy them except by a plastic surgery operation. And at this time plastic surgery operations are so expensive that they are out of the question for the average woman.

But there are two simple little exercises that will keep the muscles firm if done daily.

The first of these is called the chewing exercise and is done by tilting the head as far backward as possible and then going through an exaggerated chewing motion while slowly counting to one hundred. Turn the head slightly to the right and back, chew while counting to one hundred, turn the head to the left and repeat.

In the second exercise hold the shoulders rigid and tilt the head backwards as far as possible, come back to first position, turn head as far as possible to left without moving shoulders, come back to first position and turn head as far as possible to the right. Repeat while counting to one hundred, making the backward tilt one, the left turn two, the right three and so on.

You will also find these exercises splendid to reduce a double chin and when done for this purpose they should be taken at least twice each day. A liberal application of camphorated oil, massaged into the muscles before exercising, will also help matters along.

And remember this, that as long as you hold your head erect and tilt your chin up a little, it will be impossible for the underchin muscles to sag or to develop a double chin. You can easily prove the truth of this by sitting in front of your mirror for a moment with the head dropped forward a little and the chin held in. See how the little double chin forms? Now hold the head up and tilt the chin up a little. See how quickly and completely the double chin disappears? And even though you may be accused of "holding your head high" is this not better than having someone comment upon your double chin? And those who may say you hold your head high can't fail to observe the beautiful throat line that is gained thereby.

Another thing that has been brought to my attention in regard to lax underchin muscles is this: If the bust is heavy and inclined to sag this will pull on the underchin muscles and so a brassiere should be worn to relieve the strain.

Reduce while You Sleep!

Synleps Powders will take away the excess pounds

Here is a refreshingly different way of reducing your weight—do it while you sleep! That sounds interesting, doesn't it? Wouldn't you like to try it? Then here's the way...

Instead of simply going to bed tonight and letting your body store up its daily portion of excess fat, take a cooling, refreshing glass of water with one Synleps Powder in it just before you retire. Then your system will build up its regular amount of necessary energy but the fatty tissues will not be stimulated. And thus, if this simple treatment is used faithfully a marked reduction in your weight will be noticed in a very short time.

Do not compare Synleps Powders with ordinary so-called reducers. Synleps Powders are carefully compounded from a scientific formula. They bring about a reduction in weight in a rational, slow, but positive way. They will not cause you any discomfort or interfere with your daily habits.

Simple and Pleasant

We feel sure you will be pleased with the results which Synleps Powders will bring. Users everywhere are. We conscientiously urge you to get a box and try them. Remember fat is not only annoying but dangerous—and now it is needless. There is no reason why your figure should not be normal. Synleps Powders will make it slender and attractive.

Get a box and start reducing tonight. All drugists have the $1.00 box (6 for $5) especially at Wolff-Wilson, Walgreens.

Grocer Recommended It, St Louis Woman Says:

For a whiter wash without scrubbing—just try this granulated soap

GROCERS all over town—women, too—are telling about this new way of washing.

They like to recommend this amazing new kind of soap that soaks out dirt and stains—that gets the week's wash spotless without a bit of hard rubbing!

Try it and see! Just soak the whole week's wash in creamy Rinso suds—rinse—and dirt floats off by itself. You don't need to touch a washboard. Even in the hardest water the most soiled spots need only a gentle rub or two between the fingers.

Millions of women do the wash this "no work" way every week, because Rinso gives them a whiter, brighter wash than ever—in half the time!

Softens hardest water

Rinso, the granulated laundry soap, gives thick lasting suds in the hardest water. It's all you need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or water softeners—Rinso itself acts as a softener.

Absolutely safe for hands and clothes; contains no acids, bleaches or harmful chemicals. Clothes actually last longer—they're not scrubbed threadbare on a washboard.

No boiling needed!

Say goodbye to hot, steamy kitchens, for now you don't need to boil the wash unless you like to. Rinso soaking whitens without boiling. Sterilizes, too!

Try Rinso just once—that's all we ask. You'll never go back to washboard scrubbing again! Get it today. For economy and best results, follow easy directions on package.

Fine in washing machines

Rinso is so fine in washers that makers of 28 leading washing machines recommend it. Quick and safe—and gets white clothes whiter, colored clothes brighter.

THE PASSING SHOW.

OUR ball team took the lead by standing still. The race it seems is often to the slow. For, on the rocky road to Pennantville, They read the traffic signals, "Stop and Go." And so they promptly stopped and went ahead. Of those in front who past the signal sped.

Though by the time this breeze appears in print, Our heroes may again have lost the lead; But when it narrows to the final sprint,

Those ath-a-letes will show a burst of speed And leave the Buccaneers and Reds and Cubs As though they all were mired to the hubs.

Some British miners have returned to work And in the ground again are picking holes; Perhaps they found it wouldn't pay to shirk When to Newcastle we were totting coals. It didn't take the Britons long to learn That dear old Uncle Sam has coal to burn.

41 BODIES FOUND AFTER EXPLOSION IN PENNSYLVANIA MINE; 3 MISSING

First Four Taken Out Had Been Killed by Black Damp, Others Had Been Burned.

14 ESCAPED FROM MINE, 10 UNHURT

Rescue Workers at First Were Driven Back by Gas — Cause of Disaster Unexplained.

By The Associated Press.
CLYMER, Pa., Aug. 27.—The explosion at the Clymer mine of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation yesterday apparently crushed out the lives of 44 men. With 41 bodies recovered from the workings this morning, mine officials expressed the belief that three other miners were dead in the ruins. Figures given out by A. J. Musser, vice president and general manager of the corporation, a subsidiary of the New York Central Railroad, and by Dr. Fred R. Blair, coroner of Indiana County, revealed that 58 miners were trapped by the explosion, which occurred at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Ten miners escaped unhurt, and four others are in a Dixonville hospital suffering from gas and shock.

Rescuers Driven Back. Volunteer rescuers, who entered the gas-filled mine in an effort to rescue the entombed men, were driven back time and again. Crowds of men, women and children hurried to the mine from nearby villages soon after the explosion. The crowds hampered the rescuers at the outset, but State troopers from Greensburg finally controlled the throng, forcing the onlookers to take to the hills flanking the mine mouth. As night settled over the village, Salvation Army women from Johnstown arrived. They established first aid headquarters in a mine shack and fed the rescue crews. A temporary morgue was fitted up in another shack.

Working Against Gas. A few hours after the explosion the rescuers found the underground passageways filled with gases. They could work only a few minutes. Finally, on arrival of a United States Bureau of Mines team from Pittsburgh, the rescuers were ordered out and the rescue chief ordered that brattices of canvas be erected. It was hoped that, with the aid of brattices every few feet, the rescuers could fight the gases and advance into the farthest reaches of the mine. Black damp, the deadly menace which follows a mine explosion, took the lives of the first four men whose bodies were brought up. Their bodies were unmarked. The others, however, were burned badly by some beyond recognition. These victims were trapped by the wall of fire which came with the explosion. The blaze spent itself in a moment, and the wrecked mine did not catch fire.

Many of the victims of the explosion were related. Fathers and sons, brothers and uncles and nephews are numbered among the dead.

Alexander Trockson and his brother, Mike, both met death, as did Mike Kuzick and his two sons, John and Joseph, and George Polasky and his son, Mike.

Student Among Victims. In a temporary morgue today rested the body of 19-year-old Howard Thorburn. He worked in the mine to obtain money with which to continue his studies at Gettysburg College.

Howard's father, John Thorburn, met death two years ago under a freight train, having worked for a year, gathering sufficient funds to attend the college. Summer vacation found the youth eager to work, for he needed money if he was to return to school. He obtained a place as an electrician's helper in Clymer mine. This was to have been his last week at the mine.

Survivor's Story. Michael Seaman, a coal loader, escaped unhurt. Seaman said he was with several other miners in the third room from the entrance when a deafening explosion occurred, and that as they started for the mine mouth there was another blast, followed by a cloud of smoke and dust.

The little group stumbled toward the entrance, the loader said, and on the way saw several men lying on the floor, but could not tell whether they were dead or injured. As they reached the opening,
